That Pearson Film

Dynamite, Say Viewers

OTTAWA (UPI) — The controversial film "Mr. Pearson" was shown to the press for the first time Tuesday night and the consensus was that it is political "dynamite".

The film, an unusually candid portrait of Prime Minister Pearson, is amazing—and the most amazing thing about it is that it was allowed to be made in the first place.

Reaction of newsmen and others who watched it ranged from "marvelous" to "I can understand why it won't be shown to the public."

"Diefenbaker could destroy Pearson with this," said one veteran of the parliamentary press gallery.

"If I were Pearson I would burn it," said another.

The film was rejected by the CBC after commissioning InterVideo Productions to make it at a cost of $35,000, because it wasn't up to technical standards.

Questions have been raised in the Commons on why it was "shelved." Mr. Pearson told the Commons he walked out of one showing because the sound was bad.

"I set out to make a film and not a national issue," said producer Dick Ballantine. He blamed the cancellation on a Liberal party "straw vote".

Mr. Ballantine said it was to be a "candid human study of a man in our highest office, to show him as he has never been seen before."

The focusing was bad at times and the sound faded at others, but the film did provide a unique personal view of the prime minister.

Mr. Pearson is followed everywhere by portable sound and camera, in his of-

Pressure On CBC Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—Barbed questions with implications of political interference in CBC programming flew across the Commons chamber Wednesday over the $35,000 film on Prime Minister Pearson rejected by the CBC.

State Secretary Lamontagne, who reports to Parliament for publicly-owned corporation, stoutly denied any government pressure to prevent a television showing of the film. He maintained that when viewed by non-CBC personnel it had already been rejected by the corporation.

Gene Reaume (PC—Northwest Territories) asked when the taxpayers will see the extravagance for which they paid the bill.

BE TRAGEDY

That, replied Mr. Lamontagne, was a matter of CBC programming and, quoting former Conservative revenue minister George Nowlan, it would be a tragedy if there was government interference in CBC programming.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked what positions were occupied by five cabinet ministers who viewed the film "before it was declared unfit for human consumption."

Mr. Lamontagne maintained he had not seen it and the CBC was completely free in reaching its decision.

Mr. Fisher asked whether External Affairs Minister Martin had given an opinion that the film ought not to be shown.

Mr. Martin replied that it's none of Mr. Fisher's business what he does in his private capacity. He suggested Mr. Fisher come with him to see a film called "I Would Like To Be That Guy."

MARTIN FRANK

Eric Winkler (PC—Grey Bruce), apparently referring to Mr. Martin's attempt to win the Liberal leadership in 1958, asked why Mr. Martin was going to see that particular film.

As the House roared with laughter, Mr. Martin replied that to be frank about it "I would like to be that guy."

Erhard Cornered In Planning Lapse

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canadian and German officials were upset Wednesday over an apparent lapse in planning that saw West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard dragged into a 10-minute meeting with the anti-bomb Voice of Women organization.

Canadian protocol expressed surprise as Erhard was led from the House of Commons to the office of Conservative Leon Balcer—who was out of his office and in the Commons—where the chancellor was read a letter by a half-dozen VoW members.

"We appeal to you to bring your influence to bear on abandoning the multilateral force plans," the letter said. "You have worked an economic miracle in Germany," said VoW member Charlotte McEwan. "We expect you to work another miracle for peace."

The chancellor stood politely but unsmiling as he listened through an interpreter to the translation of the letter-reading.

Although newsmen noted that German officials appeared annoyed, both Mrs. McEwan and the Canadian officials said it was arranged through the German Embassy.

Murder, and Now...

HELL SHIP AFIRE

HONOLULU (UPI) — The "hell ship" Pomona, sailing with a new crew after her captain was hacked to death with an axe, caught fire in the Pacific today and most of the crew abandoned ship.

Three crew members were reported to have stayed aboard to fight the fire, which broke out in the engine room, while the others left the ship in two lifeboats.

TWO CUTTERS

The Coast Guard, which answered the ship's SOS by sending two aircraft and two cutters, said there were no reports of injuries. The first Coast Guard plane on the scene dropped a liferaft to the survivors.

The ship's agent in Honolulu said, "The Pomona is sinking and the crew has been ordered to abandon ship."

UNDER CONTROL

However, the Coast Guard reported later the fire had been brought under control and that crewmen in lifeboats had been rescued. There were no injuries.

A merchant ship, the Rio Manzano, radioed to the Coast Guard in Honolulu that she was proceeding to the assistance of the Pomona and was not far away.

FOUND BODY

The ship's agent said the vessel was crewed by 25 Chinese and had eight Norwegian officers and one Brazilian radioman aboard. Skipper of the Pomona was Alf Olsen, who was first mate when he found the body of the murdered captain last month.

The ship had been tied up in Hawaii since May 18 for investigation of the murder of the captain on the high seas. It sailed last night for Formosa with a new crew after paying off the crew that was aboard at the time of the slaying.

The Pomona, a Brazilian ship of Liberian registry was dubbed a "hell ship" following the axe slaying of its former master, Capt. Jacob Natvig, 51, of Norway, who was found dead in his bed on May 15. The murderer has not been solved.

Vote 'Open War'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The vote to settle the IWA dispute means "open war" within the union, Vancouver local president Syd Thompson said last night.

Mr. Thompson, who led the fight against the settlement formula, said the vote proves the leadership of president Jack Moore is "ineffective and incompetent."

Mr. Moore replied: "I know he (Mr. Thompson) intends to contest the regional presidency with me next fall but he won't win."

IWA's

Next Aim

The new IWA contract along the B.C. coast paves the way for joint bargaining "from California to Alaska" for the next contract in 1965, provincial IWA president Jack Moore said last night.

Mr. Moore made the announcement after disclosing the controversial Fisher formula to settle the coast dispute had been accepted by a vote of 12,800 to 8,007.

EXPIRE TOGETHER

He said the contract will expire within 15 days of other IWA contracts in the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

In June, 1965, he said, "it is my hope we will be able to negotiate jointly from California to Alaska with similar demands."

Such negotiations would not be for one contract, "but one set of proposals."

Controversial figure
in invasion:
U.S. General
George Patton

General Eisenhower, you were dealing with some controversial figures — General Patton, for instance, how did you happen to choose him?

For particular types of operations, I think General (George) Patton was the finest man I have ever known. He didn't like the dirty slugging—where you had to fight day by day an inch at a time, or where you had to hang on to a place. Patton loved pursuit warfare. He liked to think in terms of geographical space. How far did you get today?

As long as you could break him loose in the open and give him a bunch of tanks and a

Inquest Equal Duty, Doctor Told

A Victoria neurosurgeon was an automobile accident. Dr. Hamdi attended the woman, who after a three-hour wait by a police officer, and if he did not show up after the telephone call, he would issue a warrant for his arrest. He showed up a few minutes after the call was made.

When Dr. Hamdi did not appear when first called yesterday, Mr. St. Jorre ordered a police officer to call his name three times and then telephone him, instructing the doctor to attend.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre was addressing Dr. F. A. Hamdi at an inquest into the death of a young woman after the automobile accident. Dr. Hamdi had been subpoenaed to appear.

Hamdi attended the woman, who after a three-hour wait by a police officer, and if he did not show up after the telephone call, he would issue a warrant for his arrest. He showed up a few minutes after the call was made.

The coroner told the surgeon he was discussing with the police methods of streamlining inquest proceedings to reduce inconvenience to a minimum.

Patton Was Picked as Master of Pursuit

strong force, Patton really was tireless and aggressive to an extreme.

That's the kind of commander you want in pursuit, and strangely enough, not many people seem to have that ability. Commanders tend to get a bit too sympathetic with their soldiers—a man gets his feet battered and he's so weary that he can't walk a step farther.

A commander like Patton makes him go right on. For this reason: Patton knew that you lost fewer soldiers if you pursued when the pursuing was good. If you stopped, you gave the other fellow a chance to recover, and then you had to do battle again.

Patton had an instinct for pursuit, and that was his great capacity.

We didn't put him in for the landing or for the breakout. But once we broke out of the beachhead, we gave him his army and his tanks, and he went across France in a great hurry.

Wasn't he senior to you? Weren't there others who were senior to you among those who served on your staff and as commanders under you? Do you think there was any resentment on their part because you commanded them?

Oh, here and there, I suppose. Of course, it's only natural that there should have been some resentment among some army officers because there were so many of them who had been senior to me in the old regular army. In those days, seniority was important.

But in General Patton's case, this seemed to make no difference. He and I had been warm friends for 30 years. He was always talking about wanting to

Widow, Orphan Pension Outlined

OTTAWA (CP)—The proposed new federal pension plan will provide widows with $64.06 a month plus $25 monthly for each of any four of her children who are under 18 or who stay in school until they are 25.

Filibuster Choked Off

balance and wheelchair to help provide the necessary two-thirds majority.

The talk-halting move was backed by 44 Democrats and 27 Republicans. Opposed were 23 Democrats and six Republicans—including Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, the front-runner for the Republicans presidential nomination.

The Senate then turned to vote on a stack of about 500 amendments that have been offered over the weeks of debate. But after acting on only two of them it agreed to recess to get the parliamentary tangle clarified.

NATIONAL WILL
President Johnson, in a speech honoring presidential scholars at the White House Wednesday, said the closure vote was an historic event which "demonstrates that the national will manifests itself in congressional action."

Expectations in the Senate were that the momentous bill would come up for final passage next week, possibly even this week. The time will depend on how many amendments are brought to a vote.

But no matter how many details were announced in provinces except Quebec. The proposed amendment now is before the Quebec legislature.

If a widow remarries, she loses her pension. But the orphans go on drawing their benefits—that is, as long as they don't marry, and are under 18 or between 18 and 25 and still in school.

For widows over 65 who have worked, and earned their own pension benefits, the calculation of pensions is complicated. The basic provision is that they can get no more than one spouse would get—namely a peak of $104.17 a month.

The plan also provides a disability pension. It works this way:

Eligible would be those with "medical impairments in which disability is so prolonged and severe that the person is unable to secure substantial gainful employment."

They would get a flat-rate $25 a month plus 75 per cent of whatever pension they had earned up to the date of disability, that is, the pension they would get were they 65 when disabled.

ONLY AFTER 1971
However, benefits would be paid to the disabled only after 1971. And they would be contingent on the same qualifications as a widow's pension—that is, contributions for at least two years, and in at least one of every three years it was possible to contribute.

The plan would start with contributions of 3.6 per cent of annual earnings between $600 and $3,000 a year. This would be shared equally by employees and employers, but the self-employed who earn over $600 a year would have to pay the full 3.6 per cent.

To open restaurants, theatres, motels and retail shops to Negroes;

• To counteract the effects of complicated educational tests that restrict Negro voting; under the bill any person with a Grade 8 education would be eligible to vote in a federal election;

• To strengthen federal legislative power against states or local government which ban Negroes from public parks, swimming pools, playgrounds or libraries;

• To give federal agencies the power to cut off funds from federally supported projects in which there is hiring discrimination;

• To set up a federal commission to investigate charges of racial discrimination.

Diabetics Need Extra Care To Block Attack by Gangrene

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
Second of Two Articles

Yesterday we discussed gangrene and the problem it poses for people with diabetes: the signs of a beginning case; the great danger of this affliction; the reasons for it starting.

Today I'll concentrate on ways to prevent it from getting even a start.

KEEP CONTROL

The first rule is to keep diabetes under control. Don't cheat on your diet or other treatment methods.

Other rules:

• Strict cleanliness pays off.

• Don't walk around (even just in the bathroom) barefoot, in stocking feet, or with soft, cloth slippers. Stubbing your toe can cause a small wound, and a small wound can start gangrene in an older person with diabetes.

• Wear shoes that fit. They should be comfortable, and should provide protection both for the toes and soles.

• Trim toenails straight across, or nearly so. Do not give them a "graceful curve," because (diabetes or not!) that invites an ingrown nail infection. An ingrown nail hurts. It provides an ideal place for infection to start. A diabetic can't afford that.

ANTISEPTIC

Besides washing the feet regularly, clean under the toenails. Use an orangewood stick, because it is soft enough not to make little nicks in the skin. (Cleaning under the nails is important because fungus or other infections might get a start there otherwise.)

For small wounds, antiseptics are very important and useful. The safest is rubbing alcohol. Fresh peroxide is good, too. Avoid iodine (it can be irritating.)

FOOT POWDER

Watch out for fungus infection—athlete's foot. This is an absolute rule. Such an infection, ordinarily annoying but not serious, can (and will) cause cracks in the skin. It is helpful, if you have this trouble, to use a bland foot powder. You may need to change socks an extra time per day.

Corns and calluses should be treated by your doctor or by a podiatrist because a small infection, to you, is more than ordinarily dangerous.

TOE PADS

You may use plain corn pads, but not the medicated ones. If overlapping toes cause irritation, use bits of cotton wool or lamb's wool as a pad between them.

Avoid hot or cold foot baths.

This is more important than most people realize, until they get into trouble, because with circulation impaired you may also have a poor sense of heat or cold. So a too-hot or too-cold foot bath can cause trouble before you realize it.

Some people use white or light-colored socks. I don't think the color is important, except that light colors better show any bleeding or drainage from a sore place, so you notice it sooner.

'No Lack of Gifts' For Red Space Baby

MOSCOW (CP) — The world's first "space baby" was reported doing well in Moscow Gynecological Institute Wednesday, two days after her birth to spacewoman Valentina Niko layeva Tereshkova.

Announcement of the historic birth of the baby girl was made by the Soviet news agency Tass more than an hour after it was unofficially reported by Western press services. Her weight was not announced but unofficial reports placed it at six pounds 13 ounces.

Valentina was also reported doing well.

There were unconfirmed reports that the birth at 2:10 p.m. Moscow time Monday was by caesarean section.

Valentina, a 27-year-old blonde, is the wife of space hero Andrian Nikolayev. They were married Nov. 2 in a widely publicized wedding attended by Premier Khrushchev, who proposed the toast.

"If you have a baby, there will be no lack of gifts," Khrushchev told the couple.

Wednesday night Russia's four other male communists, Yuri Gagarin, Gherman Titov, Pavel Popovich and Valery Bykovsky—went to see the new mother in hospital and offered congratulations.

Hospital officials said Valentina was breast-feeding the baby.

WILL BE WATCHED

Scientists throughout the world will be watching the progress of the infant born of the first woman ever to fly in space.

Valentina orbited the earth 16 times beginning last June 16, just short of a year before she became a mother. Her capsule was in space in company with that of Lt.-Col. Valeri Bykovsky, who went around 81 times.

U.S. to Share Data On Large Reactors

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — President Johnson said yesterday the United States has achieved an economic breakthrough in producing power from large-scale nuclear reactors. He said this knowledge will be shared with the world.

Johnson cited advancements in power reactor technology in addressing commencement exercises at Holy Cross College.

In the past several months

we have achieved an economic breakthrough in the use of large-scale reactors for commercial power," he said. "As a result of this rapid progress we are years ahead of our planned progress."

He said the development of the large-scale reactor offers the dramatic prospect of transforming sea water into water suitable for human consumption and industrial use.

Warning U.S. Message Sent Greeks, Turks

ATHENS (CP) — George Ball, U.S. state undersecretary, delivered a message from President Johnson to Greek Premier George Papandreu Wednesday night dealing with the deepening crisis between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus. The contents of the message were not disclosed.

Informed sources said earlier Ball was carrying word to both Athens and Ankara that the United States was prepared to take sharp measures to prevent the conflict over Cyprus from spilling into a Greek-Turkish war that would have disastrous consequences for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The nature of the measures was not known.

Johnson ordered Ball to make a hurried trip to the capitals of the two NATO partners in an effort to ease tensions and war scares straining relations between them.

Aid Bill Voted Intact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Wednesday passed President Johnson's $3,500,000 foreign aid bill virtually intact—the first time in the 17-year history of the program that this has happened.

Johnson immediately hailed the vote as a "wise and prudent action," and said that "those members of both parties, who rightly concluded that this is no time to be cutting a carefully drawn measure deserve the thanks of their countrymen."

Flag Yields Priority —Debate Postponed

OTTAWA (CP) — The flag debate in the Commons will open Monday, government House Leader Favreau announced Wednesday.

It had been expected the debate would open Thursday, but Mr. Favreau, justice minister, said the Commons will spend Thursday and Friday on other priority measures.

Prime Minister Pearson earlier told MPs that two other matters and possibly a third might have to take precedence over the flag issue. They include new lending powers for the Farm Credit Corporation now under debate, interim spending authority to pay the government's current bills and a constitutional amendment to permit survivor benefits to be included in the proposed Canada Pension Plan.

Girl, 12, Beaten

TORONTO (CP) — Nine girls and boys aged 12 to 15 have been charged with assault following the beating of a 13-year-old girl who told police she refused to join an east-end Toronto "non-virgin" club.

Police said the girl was invited to go swimming Sunday night. Five girls and four boys, who said they were members of a gang, joined the party. The girl was told she should submit to one of the boys and become a member of their gang.

The initiation was to be witnessed by one of the girl members. The 13-year-old girl said she would have no part of it and police said she was set upon, knocked down and kicked.

Strange Policy

CONFLICTING AREAS of national interests and a continuing variance of views on international trade policies including the principles presently governing strategic embargoes threaten shortly to create a rift between Great Britain and the United States every bit as wide as the one now separating Paris and Washington.

Adding to the already explosive build-up of disagreement between the two major NATO leaders was Washington's recent decision to sell Romania two $150 million nuclear reactors after Britain had refused to do so because of American objections to long-term contracts with Iron Curtain countries.

It is reported from London that Britain twice rejected an official Romanian delegation's offer to buy British-made nuclear reactors. Observers claim that the main reason for the British attitude was a trip made to London by U.S. trade "trouble shooter" Mr. George Ball.

Mr. Ball used all the influence the United States could muster in an attempt to enlist NATO support to prevent Britain granting long-term credits to Soviet-bloc countries.

Because of this, according to one British newspaper, Britain felt that the Romanian deal would be impossible to force through COCOM—the NATO committee which decides upon which goods shall come under strategic embargoes—and sent the Communist buyers packing.

Whereupon the United States promptly promised to help the Romanians buy American reactors.

Whether the reason for this latest American action is a calculated recrimination against the United Kingdom for the sale of British buses to Cuba, or whether it is simply a case of Washington preaching one policy to her allies while practising another herself matters not so much as the resulting damages it will cause—one of which cannot help but be to create a further and dangerous division between the Western allies.

Important Vote

IN A PERIOD when Saanich has been going through a remarkable change and growth and anticipating more of the same in unabated measure, Reeve Stanley Murphy has provided sound leadership for the council. He has placed a progressive and business-like imprint on the conduct of the municipality's affairs, as did Mr. George Chatterton who preceded him in office, despite the conflict of persisting although perhaps diminishing old-guard parochial politics.

Most Saanich residents hence, though wishing him well in his new endeavor, will be distinctly sorry to see him leave the reevehip in order to take a machine post in Southern Rhodesia. The municipality and indeed the wider community of Greater Victoria will miss his good sense, his straightforward approach and his determination.

Of great importance now will be the selection of Reeve Murphy's successor—of importance because although a reeve cannot be said to run council or its business, his may be the decisive influence in leading to ways that are equal to the challenges of rapid development or allowing a drift to the habits and attitudes of an era gone by. The election in the offing will probably be of all the more concern as the result of one or more of the present councillors—and it may well be—resigning to seek the reeve's chair. This of course might materially alter the over-all complexion of the council, depending on the views and the qualities of the successful contenders for the vacated seats.

It is a pity that an election of such consequence as thus is portended should come, in all likelihood, in the mid-summer doldrums, when pursuits other than balloting are most enticing. This circumstance calls for a greater than usual effort to turn out and vote on the part of all who care about the future of their municipality and their investment in it. But it clearly will be an effort worth making.

Poor Enforcement

THE NEWLY installed overhead lighting for the intersection of Helmcken Road and the Trans-Canada Highway has been greeted by residents of the district as an improvement but not enough. The general opinion in the area seems to be that there should be a traffic signal of one sort or another at the crossing, especially for the protection of children on their way to and from school.

The problem of schoolchildren trying to cross the road "when traffic comes whipping along there at 50 miles an hour," as one spokesman said, is not confined to the Helmcken intersection. Not questioning the validity or the urgency of the district's concern, there are other places along the highway where the same danger exists—enough to call for an unwelcome multiplicity of traffic signals on the main cross-country artery if this were the only solution.

The ideal but extremely costly answer would be overpasses for all much-used sideroads. But short of this and of stop-and-go signals, a significant decrease in the hazard safety could be achieved if the major intersections were not only posted as reduced-speed zones but the law more adequately enforced.

Under present circumstances, it must appear to drivers that there is not a chance in a thousand of being pulled up for breaking the rules at such crossings. This does not suggest negligence on the part of the police individually; the blame must lie on the shortage of police in relation to their many duties and the growing volume of traffic. But it should have a pronounced effect in reducing the danger if even the existing forces were more frequently deployed to indicate a wider respect for the warning signs.

Two of Each

MISTER Gregoire: Mr. Speaker, I think that the fact they want to build two bridges one beside the other is a sign of the Liberal philosophy as we see it now: two flags, two national anthems, two bridges. They want to give everything two-fold when we need only one. Mr. Speaker, I think that it is agreed to fly a flag over each bridge.

Mr. Duschekets: Two Social Credits.

Mr. Dupuis: Two Creditist parties.

Thinking Aloud

"... of ships and ships, and sealing wax."

By TOM TAYLOR

In July 1940 when Britain awaited with bated breath the massive Luftwaffe air assault the London Press broke out in startling headlines:

"Out of the Fury-Pan into the Spit-Fire. Pots and Pans for Victory."

It was the Beaverbrook touch. Already he had shaken Whitehall with his unorthodox methods of revitalizing the aircraft industry. Planes were needed, badly and in a hurry, and he cut through red tape with ruthless spirit.

In all his life this was probably his own finest hour.

So it was one day he asked where peacetime consumption of aluminum went. Into pots and pans, kettle and coat hangers, down of everyday articles, he was told.

"There must be lots of aluminum lying idle, not doing its duty," he remarked.

He addressed a manifesto to the housewives of the nation.

"We want aluminum and we want it now. New and old, of every type and description, and all of it. We will turn your pots and pans into Spitfires and Hurricanes, Blenheim and Wellingtons."

And immediately mountains of pots and kettles, hat pins, coat hangers, etc., bathroom fixtures, household ornaments, shooting-sticks, vases, etcetera, grew all over the country. The women answered the call.

In five weeks the shortage was over and Beaverbrook had all the aluminum he desired, without paying a penny of taxpayer's money for it.

No less dynamic was the Spitfire Fund which under his aegis swept the land and the seas beyond, as Gordon Beckles recounted in his book "Birth of a Spitfire".

Beaverbrook had frequently acknowledged in print small sums sent to him by various individuals. And as a result a Wolverhampton paper opened a fund to buy a Spitfire.

It cost more than £3,000 for such a plane but this was the sum set for public subscription for one aircraft.

The newly installed overhead lighting for the intersection of Helmcken Road and the Trans-Canada Highway has been greeted by residents of the district as an improvement but not enough. The general opinion in the area seems to be that there should be a traffic signal of one sort or another at the crossing, especially for the protection of children on their way to and from school.

The problem of schoolchildren trying to cross the road "when traffic comes whipping along there at 50 miles an hour," as one spokesman said, is not confined to the Helmcken intersection. Not questioning the validity or the urgency of the district's concern, there are other places along the highway where the same danger exists—enough to call for an unwelcome multiplicity of traffic signals on the main cross-country artery if this were the only solution.

New African Governments

Help Wanted—Without Labels

By a Special OPNS Correspondent from Nairobi

THE surest way for a journalist to be deported from an African state these days is to try to pin a "pro-West" or a "pro-East" label on the government about which he is writing. Many African governments find it tempting to exploit the East-West rivalry to secure substantial help for themselves, though few, naturally, will admit such deliberate practice. The primary object, they will explain, is to remain on friendly terms with all countries and avoid commitments.

Details have yet been released of the value of this substantial Soviet aid to Kenya, but on a similar deal with Peking, Kenya has placed the value of more than $5 million on interest-free loan, while on top of this gesture, China is handing over $1 million as a free gift to Kenya. If Kenya cannot find the convertible currency in 10 years to repay Peking, then launching a national health service can make up the debt in exports.

But while Mr. Odinga was commuting between Moscow and Peking recently, Kenya ministers were also busy in Western capitals. Thus, finance minister James Gichuru has been in Washington negotiating with AID (the Agency for International Development) as well as the World Bank, the United States has given about $8 million in the past few years, largely for food for famine relief while agricultural minister Bruce MacKenzie was in London discussing the next phase of British exports for buying out white settler farmers so that Africans can get land. When Britain's high commissioner in Kenya, Sir Geoffrey de Freitas, was tackled on the subject of the latest Chinese loan to Kenya, he pointed out that the East had a long way to go to match the £100 million Kenya has received from Britain in the past two decades.

Now it has much further to go, for Britain, having already given Kenya $19 millions this year—half of it for land settlement schemes—has now promised $33 millions for Kenya's civil and defence needs, over half in gifts and services and the rest in loans. This represents about £1 per head of Britain's population, and there are further golden hand-shakes in prospect for Nyasaland and, expected by Northern Rhodesia and Zambia to mark their coming independence.

No Luv or Ducks

Stuffy, Idiotic World

By CAMILLENE from London

THE Control Room girls of the Barnsley Fire and Ambulance Service have been ordered by their bosses to stop calling people "Luv" on the telephone and on the inter-com radio.

In the superb words of the management there are "special phrases laid down in The Service which must be used and these phrases do not include the word 'Love'—pronounced in the North, of course, as 'Luv'."

One of the girls, Miss Julia Beard of Barnsley, who is concerned in this matter, said in words that will reverberate wherever Yorkshire Pudding, Dilka Moor and Freddie True-man mean anything:

"I have been brought up in Yorkshire and the word just rolls off my tongue. I say it without knowing I have."

But to most African states, the main preoccupation at present is not the cold war, or even the prospect of a hot war, but rather the war against poverty, ignorance and disease.

In East Africa, unemployment has long ceased to be merely a social and economic problem. It is now a dangerous security problem, with hundreds of thousands of embezzled men who have not worked for years, and who have become fertile ground for anti-government agitators.

Realizing the danger, the East African governments are tackling the problem on a big scale.

Youth brigades have done spectacular work in Tanganyika and now Kenya has formed its national youth service, with its leader the former Mai Mai detainee, Mr. Jesus Karukio.

Thousands of Kenya's youth are being given work on state farms, while others have been taken into the army and the police. An ambitious scheme provides for all employers to take on an extra 10 per cent of their existing staff, while the government is more than matching this with a 15 per cent increase in its own labor force.

Under the blazing sun where no white man could survive the "Abor" take up the old nomadic life again and amble back into the past. Six months or a year later they will return to the station which they left, ready to take on exactly where they left off.

They give no explanation and their employers ask for none. They have given the white man's civilization the brush-off—radio, house and all.

They have just gone "walking."

There are worse pastimes.

I was amused to read that one of the many slight complications that have occurred in the firing of the British Blue Streak rocket from the range at Woomera in Australia is that a group of 13 aborigines are wandering around on a dangerous part of the range.

Everything I heard endeared

Sensations

Welensky Creates Stir in U.K.

By EDWIN ROTH
Colonist European Correspondent

LONDON — Unexpected and very strange was Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home's invitation to Sir Roy Welensky, former prime minister of the dissolved Central African Federation, for a private lunch at 10 Downing Street.

Strange because Sir Roy Welensky, now a private citizen of Southern Rhodesia, had come to London for the publication of his memoirs, in which he describes Douglas-Home's predecessor, Harold Macmillan as a despicable hypocrite and traitor, attacks other British Tory politicians, and gives his version of secret governmentings he had made of them.

In the present splits of Britain's Conservative party with its agonizing internal contortions about future policy, Welensky's book is ammunition for the right wing. The Labor party is delighted about it.

That's why Douglas-Home's lunch invitation for Welensky at this moment was as sensational as the book.

Sir Roy Welensky, born 57 years ago in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, as the 13th child of a poor Jewish immigrant from Poland and a Boer woman of Dutch descent, is one of the British Commonwealth's most interesting personalities.

Macmillan Wept

His book he called Welensky's 4,000 Days — the life of his Central African Federation distanced last year. In his most dramatic passages, he describes how Harold Macmillan wept before him after — according to Welensky — having prepared a military invasion by British troops to coerce the Federation's whites.

Welensky tells how he sent a military aircraft to Nairobi, where the crew saw and photographed the invasion preparations. He continues:

"I took immediate steps to ensure that, if the British launched an operation in Northern Rhodesia, Federal troops would be able to counter it promptly and effectively."

"Soon afterwards, on the evening of Sunday, March 5, 1961, I dined alone with Mr. Macmillan in London. He was always one of the most accomplished actors in public life, and in the three hours I spent with him then he put on a truly magnificent performance."

"As he spoke of his deep sympathy and understanding

Stab in the Back

In London recently, Welensky said: "While Macmillan had that talk with me, he was preparing to stab me in the back." Asked if he would have ordered his troops to shoot at British soldiers, Welensky replied: "Of course — we would have had no choice whatever."

Welensky accuses Macmillan of shameful betrayal, and of using "treacle and cotton wool" to cover deliberate lies. "Macmillan's mind was the most complicated I have encountered in my political life," he writes. "Few men I have met have been so capable of disguising their true feelings."

He reveals that the present British Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations and Colonies, Duncan Sandys, had told him during an informal lunch: "You see, Roy — we British have lost the will to govern."

It is most unusual for any politician to publish such a remark made in strictly confidential circumstances while the other man is still in public life. And much in the book shows how Welensky had top-

Protests Lodged

Dingle Foot and the official association of British lawyers have protested against the secret recording and the publication of that confidential talk.

Today, Southern Rhodesia with about 224,000 Europeans and more than 3,700,000 black Africans is Britain's last big colonial problem. It could become "Britain's Algeria."

Southern Rhodesia is a Crown colony with full self-government exercised only by the whites. Its white minority now demands complete independence.

During the past 30 years, Southern Rhodesia was always invited to the London conference of Commonwealth prime ministers. But now at least four Commonwealth countries — India, Pakistan, Ghana and Kenya — forbid that Southern Rhodesia's new prime minister Ian Smith should attend the London Commonwealth conference starting on July 8.

About that, there will be much controversy. And about Welensky's book, many questions will be asked in the British House of Commons.

Sir Roy Welensky is now

Ex-Nazi to Run For President

By STERLING G. SLAPPEY, from Bonn

A major furor is building rapidly over nomination of a cabinet minister for the West German presidency who was both a Hitler youth and a Nazi party member.

At least three major German newspapers and possibly several provincial papers, have attacked the naming of Dr. Ewald Bucher, 48, as the candidate of the Free Democratic Party to the presidency. He is now a lawyer and heads the ministry of justice.

Bucher faced a denazification court in his native southern Germany soon after the war. He was ordered not to practice law for at least 18 months.

The soldier marching behind him can thus learn to memorize and brood over Mao's message instead of idly concentrating on keeping in step or admiring the scenery.

The only unhappy ones who miss out on this ingenious oriental system of indoctrination on the march are those in the front rank. Presumably these are rotated.

Applauding the innovation, the Shanghai People's Evening News points out "in a long route march, suitable encouraging words from chairman Mao help soldiers to overcome difficulties and fatigue. Some soldiers copy the daily blackboard messages on their comrade's backs in their diaries."

Troops Keep in Step With Mao's Teaching

HONG KONG (LST) — A Chinese soldier on the march now carries on his back a blackboard on which a party slogan from the inspired Works of Mao Tse Tung has been chalked.

The soldier marching behind him can thus learn to memorize and brood over Mao's message instead of idly concentrating on keeping in step or admiring the scenery.

The only unhappy ones who miss out on this ingenious oriental system of indoctrination on the march are those in the front rank. Presumably these are rotated.

Quotable Quotes

Life at a university with its intellectual and inconclusive discussions at the postgraduate level is, on the whole, a bad training for the real world and only men of very strong character surmount this handicap.—Paul Chambers, chairman of the giant Imperial Chemical Industries.

No longer is a picture a beautiful and valuable object in itself, but it has become an investment—a word which is music to British ears.—Lady Galtreskell.

Russians to Visit?

A Russian hockey club may play in exhibition game in Victoria in December.

A Montreal report Wednesday said that a Russian team is to tour western Canada in December and that other in Victoria, will be played on the west coast.

Opposition for the touring team may either be a Western Hockey League club or the Canadian national team that is being put together in Winnipeg built around the nucleus of the Winnipeg Maroons, Allan Cup champions.

It was also reported that Vancouver might be in line for the world hockey championships in 1967 if a new arena is ready by that time.

Liverpool Whips B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liverpool, English League champions, wound up a 10-game soccer tour of North America here Wednesday night with a 2-0 victory over the Vancouver All-Stars before 11,525 fans. Halftime score was 1-0.

Both Liverpool goals were scored by inside left Alf Arrowsmith as the English team dominated play almost throughout.

The hero of the Liverpool victory was little Scottish forward Ian St. John who was sent off the field in Saturday's game here against Meldrether of West Germany.

St. John, a deep-lying centre forward fed a succession of astute passes to the other Liverpool forwards through out the game. Although the English champions only scored two goals, they also hit the

But Few Other Surprises

Leafs Draft Sawchuk, Moore

I have come to the profound conclusion that 80 per cent of the world's weekend golfers are suffering from a fatal disease known as delusion of grandeur. You will find no reference to it, even disguised in Latin terminology, in any of the medical tomes. Yet if you seek proof of its existence, walk into any golf club, anywhere in the world, and keep a two-hour vigil on the first tee. I'll lay a set of matched irons to a bent tee-peg that the statistics will work out something like this:

Of the 40 weekenders, say, who drive off in that period, 30 will have got out of their cars, changed in the locker room, picked up their clubs and driven off in their game without anything more than a couple of practice swings.

Of the remaining ten, probably five will have taken the trouble to hit half a dozen shots on the rehearsal range or in the nets. That leaves the grand total of five out of 40 who have taken the trouble to get down to really methodical practice before they set out on 18 holes.

Let me make this point immediately: only those final five have the earthiest hope of really making good at the game.

It's Crazy Reasoning

Golf, indeed, must be the only pursuit on earth where the raw amateur has the arrogance to believe he can master the game without wasting his time on the practice that the professional knows to be vital.

It's crazy reasoning. It takes probably five years to become even a competent pianist. Test cricketers wouldn't dream of going in to bat without 15 minutes in the nets. Even athletes—where endurance rather than "touch" is the essential—warm-up thoroughly before a race.

How is it, then, that weekend golfers consider themselves a race apart—a bunch of supermen who can go straight into action and give of their best?

Don't ask me. They are wasting their time and everyone else's, yet you see it going on all the time.

Perhaps British weekend golfers are more guilty of this habit than players elsewhere. And, true, they do have some sort of excuse. More than half the golf clubs in the country have no practice grounds at all.

This, in itself, is ridiculous. It doesn't need much space to erect a practice net. This, admittedly, isn't ideal for it gives a player no idea of length. But it's certainly better than nothing.

For a start, then, I'd like to see every club put up half a dozen of these nets not far from the first tee. And then I'd like to see every player having the commonsense to use them before driving off.

They would, in any case, probably have five minutes to wait before the players ahead got out of driving range—so they wouldn't even need to get out of bed any earlier in the morning.

Player's Method Works

Believe me, the old adage of practice makes perfect applies more to golf than any other game I know.

If a top American pro misses a couple of five-yard puts in a round you'll see him on the practice green for an hour after he's come in.

Gary Player, who has broken through into the Big Three of golf, despite a tiny physique that many said would condemn him never to become a great player, is probably the world's most diligent practiser.

For six years before he made the grade, he practised for eight hours a day—and that includes Sundays and Christmas Day even.

Even now he goes through a rigorous routine before going into every round: six wedge-shots, three seven-irons, three five-irons, three three-irons, three four-woods, three two-woods, four drives and a few chips and putting.

If Gary Player needs to do that, what about the average 24-handicapper?

So my advice is: give yourself a chance. If a game's worth playing, it's worth playing well.

In British Amateur

U.S. Bulldozer Stopped

(CP from AP-Wireless) GANTON, England—Irish international Bryan Malone upset all-conquering Cpl. George Blocker of the United States Wednesday in the third round of the British amateur golf championships.

Blocker, who didn't lose a hole in the first two rounds, was dropped by Malone, West of Ireland champion, when Malone won four of the last five holes for a 2-up victory.

David Rigby of England defeated Reg Taylor of South Africa 6 and 5 in the third round while Pat Brady, MONTREAL — Toronto Maple Leafs, who have become a success largely because of the service they have been getting out of veterans, will apparently use the same formula in defense of the Stanley Cup in the next National Hockey League season.

Leafs indicated as much on Wednesday when they plucked Terry Sawchuk, 35-year-old (in September) goalkeeper from Detroit Red Wings, and Dickie Moore, 33, from Montreal Canadiens in the intra-league drafting.

Moore, who sat out last season because of knee troubles, and Sawchuk join a cast which already includes the 40-plus Johnny Bower, the 38-year-old Allan Stanley, the 37-year-old Red Kelly, the 34-year-old Tim Horton and George Armstrong, the 32-year-old Ron Stewart and the 30-year-old Don Kenney.

Moore, reached later in Montreal, said it was "doubtful" whether or not he would play with Leafs next season. He still has a knee operation coming up and had hoped to make his comeback only in Montreal.

Sawchuk said "I'm not happy but I'll report. I guess I'm moving up a notch. They (the Leafs) have got a good team."

Manager-coach Punch Inmich was jubilant over his new veterans.

"That," he said, "gives us the two best goalkeepers in the Stanley Cup playdowns. You can't do better than that."

STILL TOPS

He added that Bower was still his No. 1 tender and that Sawchuk would have to beat out Don Simmons.

Inmich was also more than willing to take a chance on Moore's knee and his willingness to return to active service. Moore had said he would only play for Canadians when he made it known that he might consider coming out of retirement but the Montreal club left him unprotected when a medical report wasn't promised.

ONLY MONEY

"I don't care what he (Moore) is supposed to have said," Inmich said. "Hockey players have a way of changing their minds. We'll take a shot at him anyway. What the hell, it's only money. The important thing is that we didn't lose anybody."

Nor, hardly, did anyone else. In an unexpected turn of events, only seven players were selected at the $20,000 draft price. But it was an interesting draft, including a charge by general-manager Lynn Patrick of Boston Bruins that brother Muzz, general-manager of New York Rangers, had "crossed" him.

Rangers, who made only one choice, apparently foxtrotted the charge by taking Jim Mikal, who had been drafted by Boston from Cleveland on Tuesday and left unprotected. When the Rangers took Mikal, they had to leave Bob Woytowich, a minor-league defenceman, off their protected list and the Bruins promptly picked him up.

Detroit Red Wings took the other three drafted players, grabbing George Gardner, Boston-owned goalkeeper who played for Minneapolis in the Central Professional League last season; Gary Bergman, Montreal-owned defenceman who played last season with Springfield, and forward Murray Hall of Chicago Black Hawks.

OFF LIST

When the Wings took Gardner, they took Sawchuk off the protected list and left the way open for the Leafs, who had left Don Simmons unprotected. The Leafs next dropped goalkeeper Gerry Cheevers from their protected list but neither Simmons nor Cheevers was picked up.

Drafting of only seven players was surprising in view of the talent left unprotected. Although clubs jealously guard their protected list, United Press, reported a partial list of unprotected players:

Boston—Wayne Connolly, Jean Guy Gendron, Forbes Kennedy, Pat Stapleton.

Chicago—Alain Caron, Pete Ford, Len Lunde, Gerry Melnyk, Murray Hall, Jack McCourtan.

Detroit—Alex Faulkner, Ted Hampon, Yves Lecavalier, Parker Macdonald, Andre Provost, Irvin Spencer, Jim Watson, Hank Bassan, Terry Sawchuk.

Montreal—Jean Gauthier, Jim Roberts, Leon Rochefort, Gump Worsley, Dick Moore.

New York—Larry Cahan, Val Fonteyne, Al Lebrun, Don Marshall, Dick Messner, Noel Price, Dave Richardson, Ken Schinkel, Marcel Paille.

Toronto—Al Arbour, Bronco Horvath, Fred Husel, Eddie Litzenberger, Bill Smith, Gerry Cheevers, Dan Simmons.

Pearson Made Hit*Baseball Banter Impressed JFK

By HAROLD MORRISON
WASHINGTON (CP) — John Fitzgerald Kennedy sized up Lester Bowles Pearson during a 30-minute test on baseball before they launched serious diplomatic negotiations in 1963. Dave Powers, one of Kennedy's most trusted aides, says the prime minister came through with flying colors.

"I'd say Mr. Pearson showed an exceptional knowledge of the game," said the 51-year-old Boston Irishman who can rattle off facts and figures on the history of the sport so fast it makes your head swim.

It happened on a cold, raw day of May 10, 1963. As usual, the president took Powers with him as he flew to the family summer compound at Hyannis Port, Mass., for the first round of talks with Pearson.

"We stood around the fireplace, keeping warm and waiting for some of Mr. Pearson's officials to arrive," Powers recalled in an interview.

"Then the president raised the subject of baseball and we got off on a three-way talk on all the greats—Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig; the all-stars; the dates, the places, the combinations of stars."

Powers, a one-time semi-professional ballplayer, astonished Pearson with his baseball knowledge. If Powers slipped on a date, Pearson would supply it.

If Powers was looking for an argument on the need of player combinations needed for World Series perfection, the prime minister was ready to air his thoughts.

"Mr. Pearson had a ball-player's insight," said Powers, who used to sell scorecards in Boston Stadium at the age of 10. "The president seemed to be listening to us, after a while. He was a golfer in practice but he was more of a football buff. He could give you the background on all the great football players. Mr. Pearson knew his baseball."

Powers recalled that the little verbal play on baseball went longer than anticipated but it helped warm up the two leaders for their confidential diplomatic talks later. In two days of discussions, they washed the Canada-U.S. slate clean of a number of irritations and cemented a warm, close friendship.

REGINA (CP)—Del Wilson has a reputation as a real western gunlinger on the fairways as well as being a man to reckon with in backroom meetings on junior hockey.

The riflemen, as he is called on the golf course, is a nickname acquired in the last six years as professional at Regina's Murray Golf Club. His reputation in junior hockey circles has been known for about 15 years.

Wilson packs a .22-calibre rifle with his golf clubs so he can shoot rabbits while playing a round with friends or giving instructions.

When traps failed to solve a severe rabbit problem on the course—located in a game preserve—Wilson, 37, was given permission to attack the problem with a rifle. He jocularly calls it his Crik club, after his Saskatchewan hometown.

"I guess it might put off some of my opponents," he adds with a smile.

Subsidizing Breeders Fought by Farmers

OSHAWA (CP)—The Ontario Farmers' Union has voted to use its influence to seek to end the practice of using public funds to subsidize the breeding of horses.

The farmers group, holding a meeting here, said it suspected that much of the crime in Ontario, such as bookmaking and gambling, was indirectly associated with the race track.

The Ontario government makes the grants to the Canadian Thoroughbred Horse Society to encourage breeding of thoroughbreds.

During the last session of the legislature the government revealed, in answer to New Democratic Party questions, that about $65,000 in grants was made in 1962-63. About 160 breeders shared the money but there were a total of 333,000.

The government statement revealed that millionaire E. P. Taylor received a total of $38,301 in 1962-63 and 1963-64.

No Pattern Needed When Firing Coach

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor
Harry (Black Jack) Smith sat in the press box at Toronto Varsity Stadium in 1951 for the Eastern Canada football final between Ottawa Rough Riders and Sarnia Imperials. He confided to a reporter that he had been fired as coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

"Off the record," said Black Jack, "until after the Grey Cup final when a formal announcement will be made."

The news was a shocker. Saskatchewan had won the Western Conference title for the first time in 13 years and was waiting around to meet the Ottawa-Sarnia winner for Earl Grey's trophy.

RIDERS LOST

The Cup final was held a week later and Saskatchewan lost 21-14 to the Big Four champion Ottawa Rough Riders.

But here was a fellow who had got Saskatchewan into the Canadian classic and who knew that immediately after the big game he would be unemployed whether his team won or lost. At that time, pro football in this country was exploding into big business, fan interest was frantic and club officials were going for broke in efforts to produce a winner.

WINNERS FIRED TOO

It was the start of an era when owners unceremoniously bounced coaches from their jobs. And there's no set pattern for the firing—a winner can be discarded as easily as a loser.

The words are full of pro coaches in Canada and the United States who have suddenly found themselves without a job. In Black Jack's case, he gave way to glamour boy Gern Dobbs, the club's quarterback described by some in Western football circles as already the unofficial coach of Roughriders in 1951.

Dobbs took over officially in 1952, the team failed to repeat as Western winner and he was out.

Coaches now are well aware they're sitting on a powder keg that can explode at any time.

No one really can explain why owners bounce—or even hold onto coaches. Sometimes fans dictate the club's policy. Other times, the owner or owners simply don't like the guy.

WALKER RETAINED

Here are a few samples of firings that football fans may have wondered about:

In 1950, Frank (Butch) Larson of Winnipeg Blue Bombers guided the club to the Grey Cup final. The Bombers lost 13-0 to Toronto Argonauts and Butch was out of a job.

Then came Black Jack Smith.

In 1952, Frank Flinch of Edmonton Eskimos knew he was out before he took Eskimos to the Cup final, which they lost 21-11 to Argonauts.

George Trafton, after taking over the Bombers from Larson in 1951, stuck around for three years. Bombers didn't make it to the Cup final until 1953 when they lost a 12-6 squeaker to Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Volute George got the gate.

Unfamiliar Area D-Day Problem

By MIKE GADSBY
One of the biggest problems facing the soldiers who spearheaded the D-Day attack on a Normandy beach was their unfamiliarity with the area, according to Lt.-Col. L. S. Henderson, who was in on the attack.

Lt.-Col. Henderson, who was a company commander with the Canadian Scottish Regiment on D-Day and its commanding officer at the end of the war—said the regiment had to work with maps and mockups which only partially solved the problem.

"We didn't know where we were going until after we had boarded the ships that were taking us there," said Lt.-Col.

Patton Was Picked For Pursuit Job

serve as my lieutenant in active operations.

Just to show you, remember this; in Sicily General Patton commanded the American (Seventh) Army and (Gen. Omar) Bradley was under him as corps commander. Now, when I heard that I was going to come up here to London to head the invasion forces, I decided that I would take Bradley as my senior ground commander of American forces.

I called Patton on the phone, and I said, "Now, George, I am going to give Bradley this spot; and one of these days he will be an army group commander. I am not going to hurt your feelings by ordering you to do so, but do you want to take one of the armies (the Third) under him?"

He said, "By all means I do. First, I respect Bradley. But more than that, I want to be an army commander, not commander of an army group or anything higher. I don't want to do so much of the thinking on the higher echelons. I want to go out and fight." That's the way he expressed it.

So I think that while he was very impulsive—any time he didn't get his way he would complain in his diary and send letters off to people and tell how he hated his commanders and all the rest of it—the next day he'd be close to weeping, you know, for having said anything at all like that or for having voiced any criticism. He was very emotional, but that's what you needed for his kind of job. So I was always devoted to him very closely and deeply.

With his great fire and drive, was he then disappointed because he didn't get to lead the actual invasion force?

I don't think so. He knew exactly why we brought him in. While he liked to be in any battle that was going on, he knew exactly what he was supposed to do when he came onto the field of battle in Europe. He started fighting on the first of August, and from there on he was in seventh heaven.

One of the biggest jobs of the supreme commander of an allied force must have been the diplomacy involved in keeping everybody happy. Did this give you some difficult moments?

Two Wars

Fighters Honored At Ypres

By BEN WARD
YPRÉS, Belgium (CP)—Canadian fighting men of two world wars were honored by this ancient Belgian city Wednesday.

Although the accent was on the First World War, which began ravaging this battlefield region 50 years ago this year, the central figure at joint Canadian-Belgian remembrance ceremonies was Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, who commanded the 2nd Canadian Corps in Northwest Europe during the Second World War.

Liberated Ypres
Gen. Simonds led the forces that liberated Ypres Sept. 6, 1944, during the Canadian drive up the channel coast from Normandy.

He used the Polish armored division then covering his left flank to take Ypres. He ordered the division to encircle the city and avoid damaging it unless the Germans decided to stand and fight.

LITTLE DAMAGE
Ypres, blown to bits in the 1914-18 war, suffered almost no damage in the 1944 liberation.

"The Germans made a bit of a stand on the ridge just outside Ypres but we didn't have any real problem," Gen. Simonds recalled.

Henderson, "although we knew it was an invasion and had a pretty good idea what we were in for."

Lt.-Col. Henderson joined the regiment in 1927 as a private, was commissioned in 1928, and rejoined at the outbreak of the war after an absence of a few years.

"The worst feeling I got just before leaving on the D-Day attack was that I might be too scared to do my job," he said.

"I think most of the men were wondering how they would behave in action. It didn't take long for us to find out."

Lt.-Col. Henderson said that although D-Day was one of the most important battles of the war, it was by no means the toughest.

He said that as the assault moved inland the Germans, surprised at Normandy, began to move more strongly against them so that fighting became tougher and casualties heavier as the allies moved further inland.

Lt.-Col. Henderson was in command of the regiment in May of 1945 when it was ready to attack Auriol, where the retreating German army was making a final stand.

"We were ready to attack when the announcement came that a ceasefire had been ordered for 8 a.m. the following morning."

"We just had a quiet church parade the next morning," he said. "And the local civilians had a service when we were through."

"We were all very thankful it was over."

Nevin Off to Newfoundland

Veteran RCMP Superintendent William Harrison Graham Nevin, who in his 33 years with the force has served in every province except Newfoundland, has been promoted to head of the division there.

Superintendent Nevin's promotion to chief superintendent in charge of the Newfoundland division was announced in Ottawa yesterday by RCMP Commissioner George B. McLellan.

The chief superintendent has been in charge of the criminal investigation branch of E division in Victoria, which takes in all of B.C.

He will leave Victoria to take up the post in charge of the 350-man division in Newfoundland and Labrador on July 10.

Taking over from Sept. Nevin will be Superintendent Gerry Engel, who has been in charge of Vancouver sub-division.

"I believe they are going to miss Victoria," said Sept. Nevin.

OTTAWA (CP) — A backbench Conservative MP was advised Wednesday to peddle his ideas for succession tax reform to the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington South) was arguing again in the Commons for revisions to the Estate Tax Act to let inheritance tax be paid in installments to avoid forced sales of properties. These forced sales to obtain money to pay the inheritance tax encourage sales of Canadian businesses to foreign control, Mr. Hales said.

But his suggestion made no progress—it met the same fate last session of Parliament—in the hour given to it.

Moving Day Befuddles Old Patients

Story and Pictures
By JIM RYAN

It was moving day Wednesday at the Chinese Community Hospital on Herald Street. Patients and all.

For the first time since the hospital opened its doors nearly 50 years ago, its patients have been transferred elsewhere.

But the move is only temporary.

For the next two months, the 21 elderly Chinese who call the hospital "home" are being cared for at the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Renovations at the Chinese hospital—which will include construction of a new stairway, extra storage space, the partitioning of a ward, and a general painting and cleaning up—necessitated the transfer.

Early Wednesday morning, the staff of 13 had packed and labelled boxes of supplies, which were sent on ahead to the Jubilee.

* * *

The patients sat among mounds of cardboard cartons, some of them looking a bit befuddled by the whole thing.

As I moved about taking their pictures, I tried out my Cantonese vocabulary—all three words of it. But mostly I was regarded with slight suspicion.

One Chinese asked me what I was going to do with the pictures. He thought my camera would reduce him in size and his miniature image would be put in a tin can.

He seemed quite reassured when I told him it was for The Daily Colonist.

* * *

Old Sou Kee—the navy's favorite laundryman, now retired—sat on his bed, looking as if he wished the move had never come about.

Mrs. Birdie Pegg—matron at the Chinese hospital for the past eight years—told me the one point which worried her 'boys' most was whether the hospital staff would be with them during their two months at the Jubilee.

"We talked to them about the move for quite awhile," she said, "to reassure them all that we would be going with them. That was the one thing that really worried them."

* * *

The staff—including two graduate nurses, orderlies and cooks—will make sure that one of the most important items about the move will remain unchanged—the food. "We're making sure they get lots of rice," Mrs. Pegg said. "They would certainly miss that."

And there will be a good supply of chopsticks, also. Most of the patients are unable to handle knives or forks.

As they walked in groups to waiting taxis, or were gently carried to the shiny, new Garden City ambulance by attendants John Hanrahan and John Wevers (there were two stretcher cases), most of the old men looked slightly bewildered.

They were going to a new world—a far cry from their small, comfortable home on Herald Street.

* * *

But once at the Jubilee, they were quickly taken in hand and moved to small, adjoining wards on the second floor.

End Smoke For Centenary'

Elimination of Victoria's smoke nuisance was suggested yesterday as an appropriate project to mark Canada's 100th birthday in 1967.

E. M. Medlen, 10341 All Bay Road, Sidney, said the nuisance concerns not only those who live in the affected area "but all those who have to enter the city from the north and drive through a smelly pall of unnecessary smoke."

Making a concerted drive against sources of smoke and fayash, said Mr. Medlen, offers what he termed "a very simple solution to your problem."

"Surely in three years (between now and 1967) city council could conclude its discussions and gather sufficient fortitude to actually do something," he said. "I can assure you no other project would win you wider support."

Cities larger than Victoria have successfully dealt with similar smoke problems, Mr. Medlen said.

Truck Destroyed

Sparks from a wheelbarrow being dragged off a truck, touched off two cans of gasoline and demolished the vehicle as it was parked in the 1000-block Newport Avenue Tuesday morning.

The truck, owned by H. A. Armiston, 2634 Belmont, was completely ablaze when the Oak Bay fire department arrived.

Lovely Yellow Broom Betwitting for Some

By MIKE GADSBY

All that lovely yellow broom growing in Beacon Hill Park may look beautiful to most people, but to others it's like a punch in the nose.

It all depends to what you're allergic, and at this time of year, with pollen at its highest level, many people's noses become their Achilles Heel, according to the Health League of Canada.

Broom is the worst offender in Victoria, but if the susceptible travel a little north of the city they can get the same effect from hay pollen, which gives it its name to the sneezing, wheezing, eye-wheezing condition known as hay fever.

People who suffer allergies—doctors say about half of us do—will have their worst bout with the pollen-oriented variety at this time of year, but that's by no means the only type of allergy there is.

To begin with, many people have allergies of which they are not even aware. Others may develop some they never had before. On the other side of the coin are people who can immunize themselves against their allergies.

Reactions to allergies vary with the individual, but one thing we all have in common is an allergy to poison ivy and poison oak, neither of which are common around Victoria.

True, some people can roll in a poison ivy bed and suffer a slight discomfort while others can walk downwind of it without any reaction.

Sometimes the cause of an allergy is known by the sufferer and can be avoided. Others may require many tests by a doctor before their cause is discovered.

But what causes allergy is anybody's guess. Doctors can usually find out what a person is allergic to. And there's a good chance they may be able to treat it or keep the sufferer away from it, but the question of why is still unanswered.

Changes Plea

10 Years For Kraft

After being taken to hospital with a slashed wrist in the morning, Clarence William Kraft yesterday afternoon changed his plea to guilty of robbery and was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Kraft had been charged with the April 24 holdup of the Saanich branch of the Bank of Montreal, and had pleaded not guilty and defended himself for several days before his sudden change of plea.

Yesterday, after Magistrate William Ostler ruled admissible a statement he gave to Saanich police May 27, he said he no longer felt like "wasting the court's time," and changed his plea.

The statement, made to police, quoted him as saying he took part in the crime, but had no guilty plea.

He said he had done this with the guns used by two of the men he considered "erratic," as he felt they would shoot if necessary.

Crime 'Great Pity'

Magistrate Ostler said he felt Kraft was the "mastermind" behind the crime, and had the accused used his higher-than-average intelligence towards a useful purpose, he would be a good citizen.

The magistrate said it was obvious from his defence Kraft was "well-endowed" with intelligence and such a crime was "a great pity."

Had he been more actively engaged in the robbery, the magistrate said, he would have received a higher penalty than two other men who were earlier sentenced to 10 years.

Claude Harrison, QC, former mayor of Victoria, represented Stevenson.

Reinstated with Pay

Police Sergeant Cut to Corporal

City police commission yesterday reinstated a patrol sergeant, suspended by Police Chief John Gregory May 20, but reduced him in rank to corporal.

The three-member commission found after two days of closed hearings that six out of eight disciplinary charges against him were unfounded. Thomas Stevenson had been substantiated.

The findings of the commission were that Chief Gregory had properly suspended Cpl. Stevenson without pay after a fellow officer made written charges against him for breaking regulations.

But it decided to allow him back pay for the period of his suspension, on compassionate grounds.

34 YEARS SERVICE

The commission also said that in deciding to reinstate Cpl. Stevenson, it was taking into account his more than 34 years service with the department and the fact that he is only seven months from retirement.

The charges included sleeping on duty, using profane language, failing to enter a complaint, neglect of duty, failing to properly search a prisoner, failing to set an example, failing to use civil and orderly conduct at all times, and failing to enter carefully all complaints.

In its written report, made public Wednesday following completion of the in-camera hearings, the commission said it accepted Cpl. Stevenson's statement that he was not sleeping, but it noted that it was improper for an officer to be lying down while on duty.

The commission said it would give Cpl. Stevenson "the benefit of the doubt" regarding the allegation that he failed to enter all complaints.

Claude Harrison, QC, former mayor of Victoria, represented Stevenson.

Chicago Gangdom's Elite Mind Manners This Time

CHICAGO — The cream of Chicago's underworld gathered sedately Wednesday for THE social event of gangdom's year — the marriage of Anthony (Big Tuna) Accardo's son.

Reputed Crime Syndicate's czar emeritus, Accardo and his henchmen watched as Tony Jr., 29, wed fetching blonde Janet Maria Hawley, 22, daughter of a Wyoming rancher.

Guests included such well-known figures as Paul (The Waiter) Ricca, Jackie (The Lache) Cagone, and Sam (Teets) Battaglia. Also present, though not invited, were representatives of the Chicago police undercover squad and federal investigative agencies.

DALLAS — Marina Oswald, widow of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President Kennedy, relaxed in her suburban home here with daughters Shelly, 8 months, and June Lee, 3, before leaving for Washington, D.C., for second appearance before the Warren Commission.

LONDON — Celebrating his 43rd birthday Wednesday, Prince Philip was applauded on his arrival with Queen Elizabeth to open the World Book Fair in London's Earls Court.

PRESTWICK, Scotland — An American fighter pilot, Capt. James Davis, 32, of Washington, D.C., who bailed out over the Atlantic, was rescued after battling wind and huge waves in a rubber dinghy for 13 hours. He was suffering from exposure.

LONDON — British ballerina Dame Margot Fonteyn and her stepson, Roberto Arias, 16, flew to Panama for a reunion with their husband and father, Dr. Robert Arias, in hospital suffering from three bullet wounds inflicted by a disgruntled political associate.

LONDON — Lawyer Leonard Stranger Jones apologized in court because he could not pronounce the name of a witness — a Mr. Symeysnow. "That's nothing," said the judge. "I have difficulty writing it." The Polish embassy said later that the name should be pronounced Shen-shu-shen.

HIGH STARTFORT, England — Mrs. Annie Lodge, 79, collapsed and died 24 hours after she won $4,813 in a racing pool.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Prof. Svetlana Gavrilovic, 25, stood up in class and announced that one of his students, Mileko Savic, 19, had flunked. Savic drew a pistol, police said, and shot the professor dead as the class looked on.

MONTREAL — The immigration department has filed three charges of perjury against accused Joseph Banasse (alias Joe Banana) arising out of a habeas corpus petition.

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man — The Isle of Man's international tourist trophy motorcycling course claimed its third victim in nine days when driver Jeffrey Eaton, 16, died in hospital here.

TORONTO — The only alternative to ultimate war is the establishment of real international friendship by public figures of all nations, Leo Thomsen told the third plenary session of Rotary International's 55th convention here.

Owner of Dump Resents Closure

A Sooke-Langford area garbage collector, whose dump recently was closed down by the Greater Victoria metropolitan health board, says he has sought legal advice.

Albert Carswell, president of the Sooke-Langford Sanitation Company, said last night that his dump near Happy Valley Road was "at least three times" as sanitary as other dumps operating in the same area.

SALVAGE OPERATION

He said that when health officials closed his dump down he was considering making it a "sanitary salvage operation" and not a dump at all.

He said that between the time health officials inspected his premises and the time he received a letter telling him they had been closed, he had begun trying out an incinerating furnace which would have made it possible for him to sell everything at the dump except ashes and the remains of glass bottles.

COMPLETELY BURNED

Even without the furnace, he said, garbage in his dump had been completely burned.

Mr. Carswell, who operates a garbage collection service in an area ranging from Otter Point Road to Mill Bay and as far as the Richmond Road, said since his dump was closed down he will be forced to lay off one of his employees.

Victoria Rockhounds Busy Preparing Hobby Show

Members of Victoria's Lapidary and Mineral Society were busy late last night, putting the finishing touches to their hobby show at the Curling Club.

The show will be open from 10 a.m. today until 11 p.m. through Saturday.

Official opening will be by Miss Victoria, Linda Gower, at 8 p.m.

Ottawa Police Get Pay Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa policemen will receive a $200 across-the-board increase in annual pay.

A new contract approved by the Ottawa Police Association will raise the salary of a first class constable to $5,450 a year. An inspector, the highest rank negotiated by the association, now will receive $7,400.

Featured in the show will be polished local gems and a comprehensive selection of hobbies. There will be Chinese brush paintings, handicrafts from William Head minimum security prison, tropical fish, Indian artifacts from the west coast, archery, camera displays, skin-diving, weaving and ceramics.

"We think it will be the biggest ever hobby show in Victoria," said an official.

Police Seek Owner*T-Shirt Key Clue
In Girl's Death

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP) — A well-worn T-shirt has become a vital clue in the Judy Howey murder investigation at this Howe Sound lumbering town. RCMP said Wednesday.

The body of the 12-year-old school girl was found beside a bushy trail May 29. She had been beaten and indecently assaulted on her way home from school. Police believe the murderer is someone she knew.

Police admit T-shirts like the one they have are sold by the thousands. But they appealed to the public, asking the owner or anyone remembering the shirt to come forward.

MEMORY LINK

They said a vital clue in solving the crime is the memory of a housewife who has washed and ironed the shirt and now knows it is missing from her regular laundry.

Police believe the killer was in possession of the shirt at the time of the crime.

They believe it was either picked up from where it was lost on a beach, from a school or swimming pool, or that it was stolen from a clothesline.

By establishing ownership, police say they could then try to determine who was in a position to pick it up or steal it.

Another clue in police possession but which has produced no results is a common ball-point

Strike Settlement
May Hike Rents

NEW YORK (UPI) — A strike which would have left 2,500 Manhattan apartment buildings without elevator operators and other maintenance workers was averted yesterday but the settlement left a threat of rent increases for many New Yorkers.

Denizen Of Deep

A 25-ton backhoe sank into mud and was partly covered by water when tide rose in West Bay yesterday, and attempts to pull it out with bulldozer were unsuccessful. Another attempt is to be made at low tide today. Backhoe, operated by M. A. Fletcher, was being used to dig four-foot-deep channel for small boats at West Bay Marina. (Stan Fernstrom)

Charges Adequate

A move for dismissal of fraud charges involving $238,000 failed yesterday when Magistrate William Ostler ruled information outlined the charges sufficiently.

Robert A. Foulié of Salt Spring Island is charged with seven counts of fraud involving re-sale of liquor.

Last week his lawyer, A. M. Manson of Vancouver, moved for dismissal before his client pleaded on the grounds the charges did not contain sufficient details of the alleged crimes.

Yesterday, however, Magistrate Ostler said the charges were specific enough to warrant further hearing of the case, and he remanded Foulié to June 19 for plea.

Gifts were received by James Taylor, engineer, and teachers Stanley Murphy, Douglas Wallis and Bob Muriel Johnson.

Montana Sorts Debris for Bodies

Rupert, Terrace Roads Cut Off

(By AP, UPI)

While searchers in Montana sorted out acres of tangled debris in their hunt for dead bodies, and while floods in Alberta claimed their first victim, rising river waters in British Columbia gave ominous notice of trouble to come.

THE CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS was still able to keep trains running between Prince George and Prince Rupert but warned that if the water continued to rise three inches more trains would have to stop.

The northern communities of Prince Rupert and Terrace were in danger of being isolated as the Skeena River continues to rise.

TWO PLACES

The northern trans-provincial highway was cut in two places east and west of Terrace. Department of Highways spokesman did not know when it would be opened.

Alaska was worried about flooding of the 400-mile long highway between the Prince George and Prince Rupert area inasmuch as the southern terminus of the state's ferry system was in Prince Rupert. Sixty-four people who arrived on the ferry yesterday were temporarily stranded.

Word was received from Vancouver that more fill was added to the top of the Peace River dam yesterday as the river continued to swell behind it. A B.C. Hydro and Power authority said that it was decided to raise the dam when the river level reached a point 19 feet from the top.

DROWNED IN RIVER

In Alberta Constable Calvin Byam, of the Lethbridge police force, was thrown from his horse and drowned in the Oldman River. He had been patrolling Indian Battle Park on the city's outskirts.

Waterton Lakes National Park authorities said the water was receding from that report area and the park may be reopened in 10 days.

In Montana the death toll has reached 30 with at least 30 people still missing. Mounting damage was going into the millions of dollars.

City Fliers 'Winged'

Dr. Coleman

Douglas Perkins received the Page trophy for highest marks in department of transport licensing exams. Lorne Merrett picked up the 3,144 employees given the Imperial Oil from June 1 to Aug. 23 last year trophy for achievement, and Workers are urged to list their names at the office in person or by calling EV-6711 between 8:15 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A Jaycees member from Tasmania was flown over Victoria and up-Island to Crofton in a whirlwind one-day trip yesterday.

Flying club members, relatives and guests have been invited to go on a tour of McChord Air Base near Tacoma. Those wishing to go by bus or plane are asked to notify the club by June 17.

George Bevis said the Saanich Peninsula strawberry crop is ripening rapidly and probably will require a larger number of pickers will be needed in the next few days, says the manager of the Victoria branch of the National Employment Service.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Sands Funeral Chapel of Ross, Sidney.

The Victoria YMCA honored 76 athletes and volunteer leaders at a special annual dinner at the YMCA last night.

All of the 76 received certificates and some were singled out for special honors. These included volunteer leader Bob Robinson and Saanich prosecutor Kenneth Murphy.

Sooke school district has protested possible pollution of Mill Stream in a letter to the provincial pollution control board, it was learned last night.

The board fears that, if effluent from the Phelps subdivision is released into the stream, it might affect the health of students at Millstream school opposite the subdivision.

Five-Topic Discussions

Capital Parley Plan

The June 20 conference organized territories to his interest called by the department of education to take part in the municipal affairs to discuss day-long conference has been joint services in the capital region will discuss five main topics.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has suggested to the participating bodies that the "problem areas which exist throughout the district are."

III health forced him to resign the position of dean in 1928 but he stayed as head of the department until 1940 when he retired.

TO DEEP COVE

That year he went to live at Deep Cove in the house in which he and his family had spent many summers since it was built for them in 1926.

His books for children and adults included Cockle Shell and Sandal Shoe, Poet Confides, Far Hills, Rhymes for a Penny, Patricia Ann, All About Babies.

He was also author of a B.C. sewage and garbage disposal.

• Public health, including air pollution.

• Regional planning.

• Hospitals.

• Regional parks and recreational facilities.

Mr. Campbell said in his letter: "It would seem that long-range solutions to these projects should be developed."

The minister told the Colonist yesterday that response from municipalities and un-

Comox Neptunes Arrive At Pat Bay Base Today

Three Neptune maritime patrol planes from the RCAF station in Comox will arrive this morning at Patricia Bay air base, their home for the summer.

The Neptunes are flying to Victoria while a $2,000,000 runway reconstruction project closes down most air travel from Comox, effective today and until September.

At the same time, 408 Night Hawk Squadron of 18 Voodoos jet fighter-interceptors began moving Tuesday, and will finish the job today, to Paine air base near Everett, Wash.

The Neptunes, part of 407 Maritime Patrol Squadron, are moving with the Neptunes, while 200 men are moving with the Voodoos.

Final Payoff for Wave Victims

PORTE ALBERNI — Alberni Valley victims of the Good Friday tidal wave will receive their second and last cheque June 22, treasurer Ray Newman of the Alberni Valley and West Coast Disaster Committee said last night.

The committee recently completed payment of 75 per cent of the assessed losses but until this week was not sure it could pay the final 25 per cent.

Mr. Newman disclosed $860,000 was paid in the Alberni Valley on the 75 per cent basis and flood victims in west coast communities also received payments June 22.

It was indicated anyone unable to be in Port Alberni that day will receive cheques by mail and final payments will be made in the coast communities after June 22.

For contest purposes, the province was divided into four zones on the basis of school population and 1st, 2nd, and 3rd prizes of $100, $50 and $25 were awarded in both junior and senior categories in each of the four zones.

Other zone four winners were: Norman Andrew Winger, 17, Courtenay High School; 1st prize: Frank James Wentz, 17, Courtenay High School, 2nd prize, both in the senior division; Daphne Lynne Mayfield, 14, Parksville Junior High School, 1st prize; and William Newell Peters, 15, George Bonner High School, Cobble Hill, 3rd prize, both in the junior category.

Theme of the essay was "The forests as a source of livelihood and recreation."

City of Courtenay captured almost in full by practice run of $120,000 camera

Satellite Spotter Amazingly Accurate*14 Men for One Camera!

COMOX — A Vancouver Island filer is joining a 14-man RCAF team whose sole job is to operate a camera.

The camera cost $120,000 and is used to photograph satellites that orbit over Canada.

* * * * *
PO Robert Burke, 27, a native of Scarborough, Ont., has been transferred from 407 Maritime Patrol Squadron of Comox to the team's home, RCAF Station Cold Lake in northern Alberta.

Practice runs for camera include such work as photographing cities, like Courtenay in picture above.

* * * * *
PO Burke will be one of two navigation officers working with the three-ton camera. These two, with 12 airmen photographers and communication technicians, work in two shifts through the night, probing space with their $30,000 lens.

* * * * *
By comparing the satellite's position, which shows as a bright curve on the 35-millimetre film, with that of the known background stars, which appear as straight lines, the satellite can be pinpointed as accurately as within six-hundredths of one degree of an arc.

* * * * *
The information is passed on to the Smithsonian Astrophysical Laboratory in Bedford, Mass., to be correlated with reports from 15 similar cameras located strategically around the world.

Data from these cameras has been a basis for scientific discoveries concerning the earth, its atmosphere and outer space.

One camera has photographed Vanguard I, a one-inch spherical satellite, at 2,000 miles distance, a feat equivalent to photographing a .303 shaped bullet in flight at a distance of 50 miles. It was data collected from photographs of the satellite.

camera also assists in the air defence of North America by teletype to Air Defence Headquarters, tracking the rocket bodies, nose cones and other man-made objects which it is used to maintain a precise inventory of the hundreds of objects in orbit.

Whale Filets, Safaris Coming Up

NANAIMO—Filets of whale will be the highest-priced meat selling in B.C. in five years, says local Jaycees leader Ron MacIsaac after a weekend trip to Coal Harbor, the only whaling station on Vancouver Island and in B.C.

He said he brought whale meat home and gave it to friends, who said "it's better than filet mignon ... tastes just like beef."

Mr. MacIsaac predicted safaris by seaplane to whaling mother ships may even replace big game hunting in Africa as a unique sport for wealthy hunters. Whether this happens or not, he said, tourists will like Coal Harbor and will be "sold" on whale meat once they taste it.

Anti-CNR Pickets Pulled by Indians

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Squamish Indian band have agreed to withdraw their two-day picket line from the Pacific Great Eastern Railway in North Vancouver.

The band was protesting the CNE unloading material along the right-of-way the Indians sold to the PGE in 1912.

Agonizing Wait

A badly-shaken man spent 30 agonizing minutes yesterday while a coroner's jury was deciding his wife died accidentally. Earlier, John K. Bolan, 4008 27.

Medical evidence yesterday showed she died of massive brain damage after she fell from the vehicle just after midnight Friday. She died Sunday morning in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Yesterday Bolan, who had no counsel present, was given the protection of the Canada and B.C. Evidence Acts when testifying. This would assure his testimony yesterday could not be used as evidence against him in the event of criminal proceedings arising from the case.

Bolan, a shipwright, said the couple was returning from a night out when the accident happened. His wife, he said, had been sitting talking to him, with her back to the car door and her feet on the seat.

TOPPLED OUT
He said his wife was not intoxicated but "feeling pretty happy" as they were returning home. He was driving about 15 or 20 miles an hour, north on Quadra near Market, when she suddenly toppled from the open door, he said.

Mr. Bolan said he had experienced mechanical trouble with the right front door for several weeks. He said the trouble involved opening the door only, and it had never swung out freely before the accident.

During his testimony, he broke into sobs several times, and the inquest was delayed while he recovered his composure.

PARTS WORN

A police officer testified he tried the door several times after the accident, and could not close it properly. Parts of it were badly worn, he said.

The six-man jury was out about 20 minutes when it returned at one point and attempted to bring in a verdict of "accidental death, due to the faulty door."

Coroner Edmond Jorre do St. Jorre refused to accept this, telling the foreman the verdict contradicted itself, as the faulty door implied it was not literally an accident.

ONE OF THREE

He told the jury they could rule there had been criminal negligence, lesser negligence on someone's part, or accidental death, one of the three.

Ten minutes later they returned a verdict of accidental death, with no blame attached.

Vancouver Man

Odd Fellows Elect Patriarch

M. J. Campbell of Vancouver was elected grand patriarch, the chief officer in the Pacific Northwest district of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, in elections held during the IOOF convention here Tuesday.

Others elected as the four-day convention continued in the Empress Hotel and IOOF Lodge were Ken Mattice of Cranbrook, grand high priest; Clarence Lilley of Hazelton, grand senior warden; Hugh Ferguson of Chilliwack, grand junior warden; James Main of Vancouver, and Peter McCormick of New Westminster, grand treasurer and grand representative to the sovereign grand lodge.

Monday the IOOF bestowed its highest order, the Order of Chivalry, upon Mrs. Ene McCabe, 3804 Holydayne, for "outstanding service in lodge and community work."

The presentation took place during a colorful ceremony following the centennial banquet.

Young Lovers Burn Together

SAIGON (AP)—A pair of teen-age lovers soaked each other in gasoline at Tay Ninh, South Viet Nam, last weekend, embraced and touched a match to themselves because they had been refused permission to marry, the Saigon Post reported Wednesday. Both were badly burned and are not expected to live, the paper says.

Many at Garden Fete

Yesterday's stiff winds didn't deter close to 400 parishioners and friends of St. Mary's Church from enjoying themselves at the Women's Parish Guild garden party held in the spacious grounds of the Newport Avenue home of Capt. and Mrs. David W. Gross.

The successful affair, which realized about $900, was opened by Bishop Henry D. Martin, retired Bishop of Saskatchewan, who was introduced by Rev. Canon Hywel J. Jones, rector of St. Mary's.

Prior to the opening Mrs. H. S. Beckton, president of the Guild, thanked Capt. and Mrs. Gross for their hospitality and the use of their lovely gardens.

Mrs. W. K. Willis and Mrs. E. E. Lord were general convenors. Highlight of the afternoon was the entertainment by four dancers, the Misses Elizabeth Manix, Theresa Barker, Brenda Walton and Gail Bamford, from the Adeline and Heather Duncan Dance Studio, with Mr. Gordon Ross and their piano.

Special feature among the gaily decorated bazaar tables was the book stall which was convened by Mrs. C. J. Bumbury, who will be 83 years old on her next birthday. Large pictorial posters, hung in front of the table, depicted the various groups of books which had all been neatly catalogued by Miss Carol Wootton. Assistant con-

Mrs. J. Howard Harman, Mrs. R. B. McDougall, Mrs. A. Bamford, Mrs. G. L. Palmer.

Mrs. J. N. Fraser and Mrs. R. A. Gossman were in charge of the decorating.

Mrs. H. Weidon and Mrs. J. Sutherland-Brown were social hostesses and Mrs. T. M. Hughes, Mrs. J. F. Preston and Mrs. G. A. Ewarts, tea hostesses.

On the tea committee were Mrs. Gossman, Mrs. E. Hewitt, Mrs. H. A. Brown, Mrs. J. C. Henderson, Mrs. W. J. Scriven and Mrs. J. C. MacDonald.

Tea servers were members of the Morning Branch and included Mrs. D. McDonald, Mrs. D. Lee, Mrs. D. T. Willis, Mrs. J. Cottam, Mrs. P. H. Bishop, Mrs. E. J. Poitras, Mrs. L. Thompson, Mrs. P. Wainwright, Mrs. S. A. Warren, Mrs. J. Fairweather, Mrs. H. Iversen, Mrs. H. M. Mawle, Mrs. L. B. Wilkins and Mrs. P. M. Boyd.

Other convenors and assistants were Mrs. T. S. Whittemore, Mrs. A. C. Garner, Miss N. Macdonald, Mrs. H. J. Naples-Jones, Mrs. R. T. MacKay, Mrs. L. S. Greenhill, Mrs. H. S. Hughes, Mrs. D. Preparing for tea to be held in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Friday afternoon in conjunction with the Royal Arcanum Washington, Oregon and British Columbia grand council sessions are, from left, Mrs. J. J.

Stewart, Mrs. Harold Haskell and Mrs. W. C. Werthner. Mrs. Matthew Yole, wife of the grand vice-regent is in charge. Mr. and Mrs. Yole are entertaining at a buffet supper at their home, 1858 Penshurst, Saturday evening.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I've read many letters in your column which seemed to be extraordinary, but the one from the woman who faked pregnancy was the living end. Tying a sofa cushion around her middle is one kind of idiocy, but the fact that she was able to fool him for five months is proof that he, too, must be a loon.

Really, now, Ann, if her husband can't tell chicken feathers from chicken fat he is just too blaimed dumb to be a father. Between you and me and your 50,000,000 readers, maybe it is best there is no baby on the way.—RICHARD B.

Dear Richard: Your statement that "he is too blaimed dumb to be a father" is interesting, since this is one achievement which requires no brains whatever.

I agree that both these characters sound as if they don't have one working brain cell between 'em which is why I did not recommend adoption.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you settle something? Last night I was out with a gentleman. As we alighted from a taxi he spent a quarter on the floor of the cab. He didn't think I saw him pick the coin up and slip it in his pocket.

I decided not to let him get away with it and told him straight away that he should have given the quarter to the driver. He became defensive and insisted that the quarter did not belong to the driver—that it had most assuredly dropped out of the pocket of a previous fare.

This man is a lawyer and I wish you could have heard the case he built for himself—possession is nine points of the law, etc. It was ridiculous.

Will you please size up the situation and tell me how it looks to you?—KATE

Dear Kate: The quarter may have been dropped by a previous fare, but one thing is certain, it did not belong to your legal eagle.

Tell the Last of The Red Hot Spenders that he wins the Skinflint Award for the month of June—Cheapskate Division.

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't think I'm a screwball because I'm using this bright orange paper. I want to attract your attention.

My husband and I have been married 25 years. He is well-educated, intelligent, and neat about his person, but he is a pack-rat. All our married life I have had to plow through tons of magazines, assorted trash, odds and ends from his Navy days.

The yard looks like the city dump. He has parts of old cars, lawn statues that he bought at junk yards, and second hand toys he hopes to repair one day. I have given up trying to raise flowers and shrubs. It's hopeless.

I am ashamed to have friends over because of the way my yard looks. Our children are ashamed too. I have pleaded with my husband but he is deaf on the subject. If I throw anything out there is war.

You seem to have the answers for so many people. Can you help me?—DESPERATE

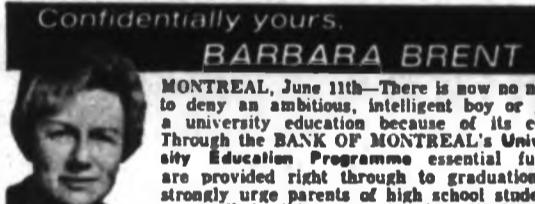

Dear Desperate: No man has the right to turn his home and yard into a junk heap.

Give your husband precisely one week to get rid of the trash and put the things he wants in the basement. After that throw out everything he hasn't set aside and let him declare war if he wants to. It will be worth it.

One of the first steps toward outdoor enjoyment is privacy—a wall, or suggestion of one, touches of greenery or flowers, a few spots of color that harmonize with your particular temperament. A barbecue in a protected spot like this one is sure to be a man's paradise. The white brick and rustic beams are reminiscent of a sleepy Mexican village. The painted chairs and round table are just a few steps away from the brick barbecue center. The kitchen adjoins the area—a good idea to make outdoor meal-serving and clean up after meals easy.

Confidentially yours,

MONTREAL, June 11th—There is now no need to deny an ambitious, intelligent boy or girl a university education because of its cost. Through the BANK OF MONTREAL's University Education Programme essential funds are provided right through to graduation. I strongly urge parents of high school students to enroll in this comprehensive, life-insured plan just as early as possible. Through saving now and borrowing later, you can spread the cost of a university education over as long as nine years and keep monthly payments low. If you have a child in high school, do ask about the University Education Programme at your nearest B of M branch.

FOR THE PAST SIX MONTHS, I have been experimenting with LIBBY'S SAUERKRAUT. I've concentrated on cooking it with the most down-to-earth foods—turning pork chops, for instance, into one of my own specialties. Tomato juice, brown sugar, and the tart, mellow taste of Libby's Sauerkraut are slowly simmered into the chops and an old favourite becomes a new exciting specialty. Why not try this wonderful recipe yourself? For your FREE Sauerkraut folder, write: Sauerkraut Recipes, Dept. CY 10, Libby, McNeil & Libby of Canada, Limited, 230 Richmond Street, Chatham, Ontario.

TAKE THE TRAIN—YOUR CAR TOO! Long distance driving can be wearing, specially with a couple of restless children along! Why put up with it when there is CN's Car-Go-Rail plan? I think CN deserves a big hug for introducing this handy plan that lets you, your husband and the whole family enjoy the convenience and comfort of train travel and take the car along too. By train you arrive fresh and relaxed . . . your car is there when you are . . . all ready to go. And all this priced attractively! Take the train. Take the family. And take your car! Canadian National Passenger Sales offices will gladly give you all the facts about Car-Go-Rail.

Students Reach Berlin

Life in Split City Has Drawbacks

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

Our two-day visit to Berlin was obviously intended not only to familiarize us with the German language, customs and people, but also to bring into sharp focus the reality of living in a divided city.

The latter was successfully demonstrated before we had even arrived in Berlin.

At Marienborn, where we entered East Germany, we spent five minutes at the Allied control point and three hours at the East German point, 100 yards further on.

Only a fraction of this time was spent filling out visa applications and currency forms. The rest was just walking.

Only Reward

Our only reward was a page of indecipherable stamps and signatures in our passports.

Unfortunately, one girl in our group had not had time to obtain her passport before leaving home. She possessed only an official letter which, she had been assured, would be adequate. The East German officials, however, did not like the look of it and turned her back. She flew into Berlin next morning.

Not satisfied with this, the East German authorities delayed us another hour on the outskirts of Berlin with the result that we arrived in the city at 1 a.m.

Far Cry

Although a youth hostel is without a doubt the most practical and economical means of accommodating 146 university students, most of us agreed, though without malice, that ours was a far cry from the Hilton.

The hostel itself was a brick building, high-ceilinged and draughty. We slept six to a room between one sheet and a sort of parody of an elder-down — cotton ticking stuffed with straw.

The hostel fare was adequate, said, we were informed, extremely wholesome. It consisted almost solely of dark brown pumpernickel bread, liverwurst, coffee and strong Camembert cheese.

Hot Water

Elsewhere, washroom amenities that North Americans take for granted, such as hot water, showers and plugs for the drains, were missing.

Started as we were at landing in such a Spartan atmosphere on our first night in Germany, we determined not to be in the least disconcerted by our hardships, real or imagined.

The next two days were to be among the most important days of our trip and with one mind we intended to acquire in that time as many experiences and impressions of Berlin as we could.

Washington Has Rash Of Measles

OLYMPIA (AP)—The state is going through an epidemic of German measles with the highest number of cases reported in several years, the health department said Wednesday.

Epidemiologist Dr. Ken Nelson said more than 3,000 cases were reported by schools and other sources last month as compared to about 1,200 in May, 1962. He added this is a "German measles year." Increases have been noted also in the east.

She Just Adds Touches

By KEN JOHNSON

There's a little blue-roofed house out near Esquimalt Lagoon with strange, maritime curios "decoratively" strewn around its neat garden.

Inside, the house is a grotto of natural art—all collected from the beaches of Vancouver Island.

MER HOBBY

It's the home of Mrs. E. E. Betts, 275 Milburn Drive, a sprightly 77-year-old whose hobby is collecting odd items from beaches and turning them into ornamental works.

Sunday, her home will be open to the public between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. when she will hold an open house in aid of the Women's Institute, of which she is a member.

For the past 10 years, Mrs. Betts has combed the beaches of the Island, picking up odd pieces of driftwood, weird-shaped shells, colored stones, petrified starfish, kelp, colored seaweed and any other item washed up by the ocean.

—Jim Ryan
Poodle in garden

She takes them home and turns them into ash trays, bed-side lamps, table lamps, vases and all kinds of ornaments.

But to Mrs. Betts, nature is the artist.

"An object has to resemble something before I'll pick it up," she says. "I don't cut the driftwood or shells—I just paint or embellish them. It's all practically in its natural state."

ARMCHAIR

In her garden, there's a grotto garden armchair, made up of 20 pieces of twisted driftwood and a few odd shells.

In her living room snakes and demons, seals and guilins and grotesque creatures shaped by the sea peer off painted eyes.

Some of her work is beautiful — some is weirdly wonderful.

NATURE'S COLOR

If a piece of driftwood is blackened by oil, she leaves it that way. If it's bleached white by the sun — white it stays.

Some of her best pieces have been purchased by visiting tourists or Island collectors.

As she looked out over the lagoon from her grotto of sea-styled wonder, Mrs. Betts said: "You can't help being imaginative living here — it's such a beautiful view."

NOVARA, Italy — Mrs. Giovanna Zanetta's hen laid an egg with seven numbers marked in designs on the shell.

Four, seven, five—and four others which Mrs. Zanetta is keeping secret because she plans to play them in Italy's weekly numbers lottery.

ABERDEEN, Scotland (UPI)—A sharp rise of 18 new cases yesterday boosted the total to the Aberdeen typhoid epidemic to 481. However, health officers insisted the increase was not alarming.

Dr. Ian MacQueen, city medical officer, said: "There is nothing to worry about. We are bound to get ups and downs."

'No Blood or Bones'

"Cold," said Joyce Kramer, "bitterly cold."

So did her two 15-year-old Eskimo girl companions, one of whom was sleeping in an igloo for the first time.

"We got so cold we didn't know what to do," said Joyce, of Mount Vernon, N.Y. "I felt like I had no blood or bones."

Joyce found herself on Boothia Peninsula, beyond the Arctic Circle, recently in the line of duty.

She went there for two weeks for the public relations firm where she works. This is the 135th anniversary of the discovery of the peninsula.

Joyce wound up in the igloo, however, because she went native, so to speak.

GIRLS MOVE IN

When the Canadian Northern Affairs department representative at Spence Bay realized that she was serious about sleeping in an igloo, he insisted that she have company. So Betty Lyall and Annie Kababoo moved in with her.

Joyce was impressed by some of the simplicities of primitive life. Just before leaving New York she moved into a new $190-a-month apartment on the East side.

NO MORTGAGE

"When I got to the Spence Bay settlement," Joyce said, "in five minutes I negotiated for the construction of a six-igloo village. No mortgage, no rent control, no problems at all."

Four men built the village in one day for $45.

Convention Told:

Rotary Akin to UN In Its World Aims

TORONTO (UPI) — Rotary International was probably next only to the United Nations in its "unveiling commitment to advance the idea of international brotherhood," a former president of the U.N. General Assembly told the 55th annual convention of the world-wide organization Wednesday.

The plan works until they try to bump off their landlord, a Shakespeare-quoting character, played by Basil Rathbone, who won't stay dead.

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT

Boris Karloff plays a retired undertaker who handed the business over to his son-in-law, Joyce Jameson, the daughter who gave up an "operatic career" to marry Vincent Price.

Good light entertainment, but I can't help feeling sad at the sight of a group of old pros descended to this, even if it does make them a handsome profit.

Saskatchewan Work-for-Welfare Rationed Poverty, Says Strachan

Is this sunflower or foxglove? Odd combination of foxglove and round top flower which resembles sunflower was grown by P. H. Davey, 1469 Hillside. Piggy back plant is examined by Miss Helen Demery. (Jim Ryan).

Soaring Carriers

Taking ride into sky aboard Vancouver's Grouse Mountain Chair Lift are two Colonist carrier boys who were winners in recent circulation sales contest. Brian Edgar, left, 1264 McKenzie, and David Koreman, 2579 Graham, were among more than 50 boys who rode chair lift and visited various Vancouver parks and points of interest on Saturday, compliments of Colonist.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan yesterday denounced the Saskatchewan work-for-welfare scheme as a form of "rationed poverty."

Commenting on Premier Bennett's support for the plan, Mr. Strachan said the New Democratic Party has always believed people should be offered genuine employment.

The only answer to problems arising from social welfare, however, is full employment.

Mr. Strachan said men should not be degraded nor should the valuable time of social workers be wasted in putting the unemployed on social assistance rolls so that they can qualify for employment on public works.

"So-called work for welfare on three or four days per month is only rationed poverty. We cannot be satisfied with such a limited objective," the opposition leader said.

SAIGON (AP) — Two U.S. Marine Corps enlisted men were reported missing and feared captured by Communist Viet Cong guerrillas Wednesday.

U.S. to Withdraw Bombers in U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — The U.S. will withdraw its B-47 strategic bombers from two bases in England next month. The joint announcement by the British defence ministry and the U.S. Air Force said the two bases were among eight which U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said last April would be closed or reduced in scope as part of an American drive to cut non-essential defence spending.

Passengers Find Paradox In Sternwheeler Cruise

By HARVEY SHEPHERD

From the outside she evokes nostalgia. Inside, she is as modern as a subway car. I took a ride on the Yukon Belle yesterday, one of the two tinselly little stern-wheelers recently commissioned which now are carrying tourists up and down the Gorge and around the Inner Harbor.

The gay, bright little ship had a bright blue and red stern wheel and a skipper with the never-never name of Johnny Melody.

And her quaint, gold-capped masts folded back across her top for clearance when the captain took her under a span of railroad bridge with only a foot or so of clearance on either side—and took her under with such professionalism she didn't graze a side.

A diesel engine and a young woman in crinolines. A gay, gold-rush banner and a glassed-in ceiling.

That's the sort of paradox that strikes you about the Queen and the Belle.

WATERFRONT BUSY

And it's not unlike the paradox that strikes you about that other elegant lady, Victoria, when you see her from the water where she sucks up nourishment.

On top of, in and around the old stone walls and the old buildings that once formed and surrounded Fort Victoria the waterfront business of Victoria now is going on.

Other things to be seen along the waterway include the indu-

No Time for Clarinet With Long Hot Summer Of Race Conflict Ahead

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — Sometimes Canadian-born Dr. Harold Taylor likes to blow the clarinet in some jazzy pieces with Duke Ellington and the gang, "just for fun." In a more serious mood, he'll work his way through Beethoven's Ninth.

LITTLE TIME

But the 49-year-old former university president now has little time for fun or laughter. He is involved in the darkest cloud on the American horizon: the prospect of a long, hot summer and new bitterness, bloodshed and death as an estimated 1,000 student workers invade Mississippi and urge the Negro to vote.

"The situation is serious and the problems are immense," said the son of a Toronto building superintendent who became president of Sarah Lawrence College at the age of 39—the youngest university president in U.S. history.

AMERICAN CITIZEN

The blue-eyed Dr. Taylor recognized as a philosopher and education authority, now serves as human relations consultant to Adlai Stevenson, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. Taylor became an American citizen in 1947.

"The Justice department simply isn't doing its job," he added in an interview as he sat on the stage of a downtown theatre. The theatre had been turned into an unofficial court to hear evidence of Negroes who had been crippled, orphaned or widowed by police brutality or sniper's bullets in Mississippi.

SEEK PROTECTION

Dr. Taylor headed a panel of nine American intellectuals selected by a national co-ordinating committee of Negro organizations seeking to persuade President Johnson to send federal marshals into Mississippi to help protect the student workers this summer.

One panelist, Joe Heller of New York, who wrote the novel Catch-22, became so emotionally upset on hearing witnesses tell of tortures that he suggested the U.S. forget about South Viet Nam and declare war on Mississippi.

SIMILAR STORIES

The stories the Negroes told were similar to those told before—beatings at the hands of white police; loss of jobs, homes and wages when Negroes tried to become voters; jailings without legitimate charges; degradation and hopelessness for those born black.

Other panelists, who included a New York judge, a sociologist, a historian and several writers, appeared shocked by Heller's proposal for all-out war on Mississippi, but Dr. Taylor and others agreed the young student workers would have no bed of roses in that state.

BIT NO LONGER

All agreed the federal government could no longer sit back and await events. Several legal advisers suggested the justice department has the power to act. All that is lacking, they suggested, is the political will.

Lyn Prefers Caves, Animals

42 Daily Colonist, Victoria
Thursday, June 11, 1964

Likes Persons, Not People

Lonely Lyn

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Lyn Anderson is a tall, shapely blonde who prefers animals to people and caves to houses. But the people won't let her have it that way.

She tried to escape from the civilization that does not understand her — and that she does not seem to understand — by moving to a cave on a shore of Lake Worth.

For company she had two dogs and a cat. Then police found her and made her move.

"I knew they would find me sometime," she said. "But I lived there 2½ weeks before they ran me off."

Now Lyn, 19, is looking for another place where she can lead the simple life alone.

"I've never cared for people as a whole," she said. "I like individuals. Most just call me anti-social."

Lyn now spends nights with a girl friend with whom she worked as a car-hop at a Fort Worth drive-in.

"I'll get a steady job and an apartment and stay until I save up enough money," she said. "Next time I'll go where they won't find me."

Lyn moved to the Lake Worth cave after she "grew tired of people."

Her "refrigerator" was a large plastic wastebasket filled with crushed ice.

When she ran out of food, she would return to work for a day at the drive-in.

She decided to air her blankets and left them hanging on the rocks when she went to work. Lake Worth officers spotted the blankets and confiscated them along with the rest of her belongings.

Lyn went to the police station to claim her belongings.

"I don't understand what the big deal is," she said. "When I went to town, people looked at me like I was on exhibit."

Counting Sheep, Goats Not Simple in Cyprus

By DON GAIN
Colonial Military Reporter

NICOSIA — Telling the sheep from the goats in Cyprus is not as easy as it might seem, according to Lieut. Bruce Paxton, 29, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Paxton, 517 Kelvin Road.

This, surprisingly, is an important part of his job with the operational staff of headquarters Nicosia zone.

"I had a man counting goats one day while I counted sheep," he said, "and then found he couldn't tell them apart."

Having seen the animals myself I know what he means.

A few days ago I spent a morning with Lieut. Paxton watching him on his liaison job with Turkish and Greek Cypriots.

We called at the Konak in the Turkish sector of Nicosia. It is a combination land registry and municipal office and law court.

The assistant district officer, 48-year-old Dervish Nihad, told me that he has not been paid since the Turks withdrew from some Turkish farmers who wanted to inspect their crops,

He had a list of cases to talk over with Lieut. Paxton.

A man now living in Ortaheu had been forced to abandon his beehives in a town now under Greek control and he wanted to get them back.

"The Greeks destroyed bees and honey worth 700 pounds," Mr. Nihad said.

Lieut. Paxton arranged for a Royal Canadian Dragoon's Ferret scout car to escort the beekeeper to Kazaphani, pick up some Turkish farmers who wanted to inspect their crops, and then proceed to Trapeza, the abandoned village. The group would stay overnight, prepare the remaining bees while they were dormant during the night to be transported out of the area the next day.

Two trucks had been left behind by the Turks. These were to be brought out if they were still in serviceable condition.

At this juncture Mr. Nihad called for Turkish coffee and we drank the hot brew in the 90-degree temperature.

Two men came in to see about inspecting their crops near Larnaca in the Greek section. There was a letter from some Turks who wanted to go to Lapithos to get the money for bitter lemons they had sold last fall.

I found there are two types of lemons in Cyprus, round, sweet ones (not exported), and the egg-shaped ones we know which are called bitter lemons.

Lieut. Paxton arranged to pick up the money and bring it to Mr. Nihad in the Konak for distribution.

Another group of Turks wanted to sell their crop in the Greek territory to the Greeks. Otherwise they would have to arrange for 20 farm workers to spend 20 days on the harvesting and this would require constant escorts by Canadian troops. It would be simpler just to sell the crop.

Bruce Paxton arrived in Cyprus with the first plane-load in March. He has been on exchange with the Van Doos since the fall of 1962. His military career began with the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment of the militia in Victoria while he was still at Mount View High School. He took the officer candidate program at Camp Borden, was posted to the 1st Battalion, PPCLI, at Work Point in the fall of 1958. He studied French in Quebec City and from Camp Valcartier.

He seems admirable suited for his task. A relaxed, free-and-easy manner makes for cordial relations with both Turks and Greeks. But it does have its trying moments.

Appointments will be made for negotiating and the persons concerned just don't show up.

One day he arranged for the Turks to harvest their crops.

The Turkish owners appeared and said the women were afraid to work in the fields even though Canadian troops were standing by to protect them. "Well, the men do the harvesting," Lieut.

Paxton said. All he got for this effort was an incredulous look. Harvesting is not men's work.

Victorian Gathers Information

COMING OF AGE

With Sally Hamilton

In the first half of this century, while the population of Canada doubled, the number of persons over 65 quadrupled. And, being 65 years old now isn't what it used to be. It no longer means feeling finished; it can instead feel like just getting started!

If you are nearing 65, you have 20 active years stretching out before you. Obviously, you need a plan for this new era. Your second career, which normally starts around 60 or 65, deserves plenty of preparation just as a first career demands planning and work.

Probably you look forward with pleasure to the time when you can quit work. Most people do. No more will you have daily irritations and pressures. There will be time to look after many personal concerns that right now you must crowd into evenings or weekends or leave undone. How wonderful it will be to be free!

But will it? One senior citizen, witnessing before the Canadian Senate Special Committee on Aging, was asked if he missed anything in particular. His answer: "Mostly getting up and going to work in the morning, catching the bus at a certain time, and just general routine."

It can be quite a shock to find yourself with unlimited time on your hands.

Will you have interesting things to do? Enough money? Good health? Friends? If you've found the answers that fit your needs, you'll welcome your new freedom.

Even at 60 or 65, if you've delayed that long, it's not too late to ask yourself: "What shall I do? Is there something I've failed to get out of life that I can get now? Education, a new skill, travel? Public service, teaching?"

"It's no use—I'm too old!" Some people have said just that for 30 years. In that time they could have accomplished all the things they thought they were too old to do.

Not only have they failed to learn new skills but they have done little or nothing towards protecting their health or making new friends. Advised to have a medical check-up, they respond, "It's just old age!" Invited to join a group, they say, "I was never a joiner. Anyway, old friends are best."

As his company's chief signing officer, John Sullivan (68), carried a big load for many years. Now retired, he has ample money, health that is only fair and nothing to do with his time.

He keeps asking his friends to help him find a job. One day a friend did come up with an offer of a routine job in the public library. "Oh, I couldn't do that!" Tapping his forehead, he said, "I want to use my brains." So he still sits at home and broods. What's happening to his brain now?

Can you learn a new language, play an instrument, deliver an address, teach something or improve your cooking? You can, if you will. It's not age but the set of the mind that counts. A retired farmer, now 87, is realizing a lifelong dream. He's studying Greek.

A former teacher of physical education carves miniatures of totem poles, famous buildings, boats and clocks. In 10 years he has become a mous for his work. His interest in youth did not stop on retirement. Now he holds impromptu carvings and hobby meetings daily with the neighborhood children.

Wherever you are now, it's never too early or too late to take stock of where you are going. Every year, in every centre in Canada, new activities are opening up. Look around you and ask. Ask at your library, high school, vocational training centre, university, recreational centre, YW or YMCA.

Even while working you can attend night classes. No one else can choose your second career for you. It's a do-it-yourself—but it's a must!

Reds Launch New Satellite

Prints Lively Witty Record Of Japanese

By INA D. D. URTHOFF

Selections from the permanent collection will form part of the program at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria for the next three weeks.

Many of them have been exhibited and commented upon in the past, but the painters are friends whose work continues to impress and intrigue the public even after prolonged periods.

Being shown for the first time, are the woodblock prints by Katsushika Hokusai, one of the world's great draftsmen, which make a beautiful exhibit in the North Gallery.

From the designing and cutting of the woodblocks is the final printing process which is in the traditional manner used since the beginning of the Ukiyo-E school in Japan, early in the 14th century.

But the word Ukiyo-E, meaning "The Passing World," suggests a fleeting or contemporary choice of subject matter packed with allusions, jealousy, heroism or romantic love.

It was not until later that it finds expression in pure landscape; Hokusai profited from the great traditions of the Chinese school.

It was from these landscapes that some knowledge of Far Eastern pictorial design was brought to the West, the flat unshaded color and the use made of pictorial space were of special interest to artists seeking a new vision.

Formal values, relations of line and color characterize the work of Hokusai but it is also lively, witty but not frivolous. It is a record of Japanese life.

Hokusai's famous thirty-six views of Mount Fuji and a complete set of one hundred views in this collection but it is in volumes of the Mangwa, sketches of human, animal and bird life, games of strength, studies of peasant life, that we come closest to the artist who signed himself Old Man Mad About Drawing.

We have only to study the drawing in Dancing Fox and Shield from the Mangwa to see what he meant.

The exquisite drawing in Mice as well as the beautifully integrated design in it prove Katsushika Hokusai to have been one of the world's greatest draftsmen.

55-Year Resident Dies at 76

Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Peden, a resident of Victoria for the past 55 years, died Tuesday at 76.

Mrs. Peden, wife of Thomas Peden, was a member of a prominent Victoria family, and was born in Vancouver.

She lived with her husband at Brentwood during her early years on the Island, working in the family grocery store and taking an active interest in Women's Institute affairs.

In Victoria, Mrs. Peden belonged to the British Israel Society and was a member of First Baptist Church.

She is survived by her husband; four daughters, Mrs. Jean Erb, Clive, Alta, Mrs. Mary Castello, Mrs. Eileen Carlson and May Peden, all of Victoria; nine grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Boston, Vancouver.

A son, Gordon, was killed in RCAF action in the Second World War.

Funeral services will be held at 3:15 p.m. Saturday at McCallum Brothers.

RCAF Dance

The 800 Pacific Wing RCAF Association will hold a Hawaiian dance for members and friends on June 13 starting at 9 p.m., at 1212 Quadra Street.

That Pearson Film

Dynamite, Say Viewers

OTTAWA (UPI) — The controversial film "Mr. Pearson" was shown to the press for the first time Tuesday night and the consensus was that it is political "dynamite".

The film, an unusually candid portrait of Prime Minister Pearson, is amazing—and the most amazing thing about it is that it was allowed to be made in the first place.

Reaction of newsmen and others who watched it ranged from "marvelous" to "I can understand why it won't be shown to the public."

"Diefenbaker could destroy

Pearson with this," said one veteran of the parliamentary press gallery.

"If I were Pearson I would burn it," said another.

The film was rejected by the CBC after commissioning InterVideo Productions to make it at a cost of $35,000, because it wasn't up to technical standards.

Questions have been raised in the Commons on why it was "shelved." Mr. Pearson told the Commons he walked out of one showing because the sound was bad.

"I set out to make a film but not a national issue," said producer Dick Ballantine. He blamed the cancellation on a Liberal party "straw vote".

Mr. Ballantine said it was to be a "candid human study of a man in our highest office, to show him as he has never been seen before."

The focussing was bad at times and the sound faded at others, but the film did provide a unique personal view of the prime minister.

Mr. Pearson is followed everywhere by portable sound and camera, in his of-

Pressure On CBC Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government gained parliamentary approval Wednesday for its Columbia River treaty with the U.S., paving the way for formal ratification of the long-debated pact and a start on the massive power and flood-control project.

Without a recorded vote, the Senate added its approval to that of the Commons.

AMPLE TIME

The government has ample time to meet its Oct. 1 deadline for ratification of the treaty and protocol with the U.S.

Once that is done, the U.S. government will hand over $274,800 to British Columbia—a lump-sum payment for electrical power for 30 years.

WILL PAY EXTRA

In addition, the U.S. will pay another $60,000 for flood-control benefits from storage dam facilities to be erected in Canada. The total U.S. payment will more than cover the costs of the dams which are to be completed by 1973.

In the upper chamber, Liberal Senator Thomas Reid criticized the treaty and said it would confer water benefits on the U.S. that would far outweigh the power potential of the Columbia River. He said it was "important" that the treaty resolution be referred to a Senate committee for study, but did not press his suggestion.

DOUBLE TALK

The B.C. senator accused Social Credit Premier Bennett of British Columbia of "political doubletalk" in claiming that B.C. will get cheap power. Vancouver's electricity rate was double that of Toronto, Ottawa and Winnipeg, he said.

"The cheap power talk by Mr. Bennett is just so much political sycwax," he said.

BE TRAGEDY

That, replied Mr. Lamontagne, was a matter of CBC programming and, quoting former Conservative revenue minister George Nowlan, it would be a tragedy if there was government interference in CBC programming.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked what positions were occupied by five cabinet ministers who viewed the film "before it was declared unfit for human consumption."

COMPLETELY FREE

Mr. Lamontagne maintained he had not seen it and the CBC was completely free in reaching its decision.

Mr. Fisher asked whether External Affairs Minister Martin had given an opinion that the film ought not to be shown.

Mr. Martin replied that it's none of Mr. Fisher's business what he does in his private capacity. He suggested Mr. Fisher come with him to see a film called "I Would Like To Be That Guy."

MARTIN FRANK

Erie Winkler (PC — Grey Bruce), apparently referring to Mr. Martin's attempt to win the Liberal leadership in 1958, asked why Mr. Martin was going to see that particular film.

As the House roared with laughter, Mr. Martin replied that to be frank about it "I would like to be that guy."

When Dr. Hamdi attended the woman, who had been subpoenaed to appear yesterday, he was shocked to find her brain damaged in the accident.

Erhard Cornered In Planning Lapse

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canadian and German officials were upset Wednesday over an apparent lapse in planning that saw West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard dragged into a 10-minute meeting with the anti-bomb Voice of Women organization.

Canadian protocol officials expressed surprise as Erhard was led from the House of Commons to the office of Conservative Leon Balcer—who was out of his office and in the Commons—where the chancellor was read a letter by a half-dozen VoW members.

We appeal to you to bring your influence to bear on abandoning the multilateral force plans, the letter said.

You have worked an economic miracle in Germany," said VoW member Charlotte McEwan. "We expect you to work another miracle for peace."

The chancellor stood politely but unsmiling as he listened through an interpreter to the translation of the letter-reading.

Although newsmen noted that German officials appeared annoyed, both Mrs. McEwan and the Canadian officials said it was arranged through the German Embassy.

Inquest Equal Duty, Doctor Told

A Victoria neurosurgeon was told yesterday his duty in testifying before coroner's juries was just as clear as his duty to his patients, after the surgeon was late in appearing before an inquest. (See story, Page 21.)

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre was addressing Dr. F. A. Hamdi at an inquest into the death of a young woman after an automobile accident. Dr. Hamdi attended the woman, who suffered brain damage in the accident.

When Dr. Hamdi did not appear when first called yesterday, Mr. St. Jorre ordered a police officer to call his name three times and then telephone him, instructing the doctor to attend.

Mr. St. Jorre said Dr. Hamdi

had been subpoenaed to appear after a three-hour wait by a police officer, and if he did not show up after the telephone call, he would issue a warrant for his arrest. He showed up a few minutes after the call was made.

The coroner told the surgeon he was discussing with the police methods of streamlining inquest proceedings to reduce inconvenience to a minimum.

The new IWA contract along the B.C. coast paves the way for joint bargaining "from California to Alaska" for the next contract in 1966, provincial IWA president Jack Moore said last night.

Mr. Moore made the announcement after disclosing the controversial Fisher formula to settle the coast dispute had been accepted by a vote of 12,889 to 8,607.

EXPIRE TOGETHER

He said the contract will expire within 15 days of other IWA contracts in the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

In June, 1966, he said, "It is my hope we will be able to negotiate jointly from California to Alaska with similar demands."

Such negotiations would not be for one contract, "but one set of proposals."

Pressure On CBC Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—Barbed questions with implications of political interference in CBC programming flew across the Commons chamber Wednesday over the $35,000 film on Prime Minister Pearson rejected by the CBC.

State Secretary Lamontagne, who reports to Parliament for the publicly-owned corporation, stoutly denied any government pressure to prevent a television showing of the film. He maintained that when viewed by non-CBC personnel it had already been rejected by the corporation.

Gene Reaume (PC—Northwest Territories) asked when the taxpayers will see the extravaganza for which they paid the bill.

'DOUBLETALK'

That, replied Mr. Lamontagne, was a matter of CBC programming and, quoting former Conservative revenue minister George Nowlan, it would be a tragedy if there was government interference in CBC programming.

Trio Fights Flames As Crewmen Flee

HONOLULU (UPI) — The "hell ship" Pomona, sailing with a new crew after her captain was hacked to death with an axe, caught fire in the Pacific today and most of the crew abandoned ship.

Three crew members were reported to have stayed aboard to fight the fire, which broke out in the engine room, while the others left the ship in two lifeboats.

TWO CUTTERS

The Coast Guard, which answered the ship's SOS by sending two aircraft and two cutters, said there were no reports of injuries. The first Coast Guard plane on the scene dropped a lifeline to the survivors.

The ship's agent in Honolulu said, "the Pomona is sinking and the crew has been ordered to abandon ship."

UNDER CONTROL

However, the Coast Guard reported later the fire had been brought under control and that crewmen in lifeboats had been rescued. There were no injuries.

A merchant ship, the Rio Manano, radioed to the Coast Guard in Honolulu that she was proceeding to the assistance of the Pomona and was not far away.

FOUND BODY

The ship's agent said the vessel was crewed by 25 Chinese and had eight Norwegian officers and one Brazilian radioman aboard. Skipper of the Pomona was Alf Olsen, who was first mate when he found the body of the murdered captain last month.

The ship had been tied up in Hawaii since May 18 for investigation of the murder of the captain on the high seas. It sailed last night for Formosa with a new crew after paying off the crew that was aboard at the time of the slaying.

The Pomona, a Brazilian ship of Liberian registry was dubbed the "hell ship" following the axe slaying of its former master, Capt. Jacob Natvig, 51, of Norway, who was found dead in his bed on May 15. The murderer has not been solved.

Vote
'Open War'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The vote to settle the IWA dispute means "open war" within the union, Vancouver local president Syd Thompson said last night.

Mr. Thompson, who led the fight against the settlement formula, said the vote proves the leadership of president Jack Moore is "ineffective and incompetent."

Mr. Moore replied: "I know he (Mr. Thompson) intends to contest the regional presidency with me next fall but he won't win."

Next Aim

The new IWA contract along the B.C. coast paves the way for joint bargaining "from California to Alaska" for the next contract in 1966, provincial IWA president Jack Moore said last night.

Mr. Moore made the announcement after disclosing the controversial Fisher formula to settle the coast dispute had been accepted by a vote of 12,800 to 8,607.

EXPIRE TOGETHER

He said the contract will expire within 15 days of other IWA contracts in the U.S. Pacific Northwest.

In June, 1966, he said, "it is my hope we will be able to negotiate jointly from California to Alaska with similar demands."

Such negotiations would not be for one contract, "but one set of proposals."

Choked Off

WASHINGTON (CP) — With 101 to spare, the Senate called a halt Wednesday to the 75-day civil rights filibuster by limiting each senator to one hour more of debate on the measure and any amendments offered.

All 100 senators were present for the 71-to-29 vote invoking "closure" on civil rights debate for the first time in Senate history. Even Senator Clair Engle (Dem. Calif.), ailing after two brain operations, came by am-

Fourth of a series:
Conversation with Eisenhower as he looks back to Invasion: 1944

Controversial figure
in invasion:
U.S. General
George Patton

General Eisenhower, you were dealing with some controversial figures — General Patton, for instance, how did you happen to choose him?

For particular types of operations, I think General (George) Patton was the finest man I have ever known. He didn't like the dirty slugging—where you had to fight day by day an inch at a time, or where you had to hang on to a place. Patton loved pursuit warfare. He liked to think in terms of geographical space. How far did you get today?

As long as you could break him loose in the open and give him a bunch of tanks and a

Inquest Equal Duty, Doctor Told

A Victoria neurosurgeon was an automobile accident. Dr. Hamdi attended the woman, who suffered brain damage in the accident.

When Dr. Hamdi did not appear when first called yesterday, Mr. St. Jorre ordered a police officer to call his name three times and then telephone him, instructing the doctor to attend.

Mr. St. Jorre said Dr. Hamdi

had been subpoenaed to appear after a three-hour wait by a police officer, and if he did not show up after the telephone call, he would issue a warrant for his arrest. He showed up a few minutes after the call was made.

The coroner told the surgeon he was discussing with the police methods of streamlining inquest proceedings to reduce inconvenience to a minimum.

gave the other fellow a chance to recover, and then you had to do battle again.

Patton had an instinct for pursuit, and that was his great capacity.

We didn't put him in for the landing or for the breakout. But once we broke out of the beachhead, we gave him his army and his tanks, and he went across France in a great hurry.

Wasn't he senior to you? Weren't there others who were senior to you among those who served on your staff and as commanders under you? Do you think there was any resentment on their part because you commanded them?

Oh, here and there, I suppose. Of course, it's only natural that there should have been some resentment among some army officers because there were so many of them who had been senior to me in the old regular army. In those days, seniority was important.

But in General Patton's case, this seemed to make no difference. He and I had been warm friends for 30 years. He was always talking about wanting to strong force, Patton really was tireless and aggressive to an extreme.

That's the kind of commander you want in pursuit, and strangely enough, not many people seem to have that ability. Commanders tend to get a bit too sympathetic with their soldiers—a man gets his feet blistered and he's so weary that he can't walk a step farther.

A commander like Patton makes him go right on. For this reason: Patton knew that you lost fewer soldiers if you pursued when the pursuing was good. If you stopped, you were always talking about wanting to
